BLAME PARTY, NOT SMITH

Paper Praises Governor but Finds Fault With Democratic Principles

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1928 By Post Pub. Co.

New York — A development of no small importance in the political world hereabouts is the announcement of the New York Sun that it would support Herbert Hoover for the presidency.

Originally one of the staunchest supporters of President Coolidge for renomination, the Sun has for several weeks maintained a neutral attitude as between the candidates. During state campaigns it has warmly supported many of Governor Smith's policies and because of its respect for Governor Smith's vote getting ability urged the drafting of Mr. Coolidge at Kansas City.

The Sun's editorial reads in part as follows:

"In reaching the belief that this decision should go to the Republicans the Sun is influenced by the larger issues and these alone. It has due regard for the remarkable history and accomplishments of Alfred E. Smith. It has no sympathy with the contention that his ability does not measure so high as the presidency; his eight years in the governor's chair have proved the ease with which he grasps political problems. Nor does the Sun take seriously the allegation that Mr. Smith's election would mean the 'Tammanyizing' of government; the appointments which he has made at Albany are proof of the hollowness of that argument. The picture of the governor in a tiger's skin may cause in the west and south that terror which it is meant to inspire, but the east has outgrown such bugaboos.

FAULT WITH PARTY

"Far from joining in the ill-natured criticism — some open, some whispered — which has been leveled at Governor Smith by Republicans like William Allen White, and by Democrats innumerable, this newspaper believes that in nominating Mr. Smith his party took the only step consistent with the political history of the last 10 years. Needless to say, he is not at the head of a united party, for the agitation over prohibition, while cleaving both parties, has wrought the greater division among the Democrats. But at least he is bolder, more magnetic and more easily understood than any other living Democrat. It is not the man with whom we find fault, but the history and the policies of his party and certain views to which as a Democrat he subscribes and which he seeks to promulgate."

The Sun then adds that it bases its support of Mr. Hoover on the belief that there has been prosperity," under Republican administrations and economic depression or disaster under Democratic rule." Stressing the protective tariff and the accomplishments of the Coolidge administration both at home and abroad, the Sun points out that Mr. Hoover "has declared that he will carry out the Coolidge policies" while Mr. Smith "agrees with his party platform in its hostility to the Mellon plan of taxation and its criticism of the administration's foreign policy."

DISTURB BALANCE

In conclusion the Sun says that it would be "an unfortunate thing for the United States to disturb the economic balance within its borders or to abandon the policies which make it respected on both sides of the globe," and argues that the long association of Mr. Hoover with Mr. Coolidge "assures his ability to carry out the pledge that he will keep the ship headed as it heads now."

As to prohibition, the Sun says while prohibition is a live campaign topic it is a question "whether it would be possible for Mr. Smith, as president, to obtain the reforms he desires when his own party in the South and West opposes modification and whether in any event, it would be well to risk the possible loss of prosperity for the possible reform of liquor conditions."

DROP PROCEEDINGS IN KALLEN BLASPHEMY CASE

Boston — (AP) — All proceedings against Dr. Horace M. Kallen, former Harvard lecturer and once a professor at the University of Wisconsin, for whom a warrant charging blasphemy was issued a few days ago, were disposed of Wednesday when Judge Murray of municipal court announced that "no warrant would issue" and that there were no grounds for any action.

The original warrant, based on a speech by Dr. Kallen at a Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting last Thursday, was recalled by Judge Murray Tuesday.

Wednesday the judge said the professor would not be arrested and that the warrant was sent to the police by mistake before the facts were gone into thoroughly. The meeting at which the speech was made was orderly, the judge said, and nothing occurred to warrant criticism.

BADGER CANDIDATES TO BROADCAST OVER WGN

Chicago—(AP)—Wisconsin candidates for governor and the United States senate, will address radio audiences this week over station WGN.

John E. Ferris, one of four Republican candidates for the gubernatorial nomination, will speak Wednesday night. Governor Fred R. Zimmerman will speak Saturday night, and Walter J. Kohler on Sunday night. Congressman Joseph D. Beck, the fourth nominee, has not accepted the station's invitation. Mayor A. G. Schmedeman of Madison, Democratic nominee for governor, will talk Thursday night, but M. K. Riley, Democratic senatorial nominee, will be unable to speak.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette and George W. Mead of Wisconsin Rapids, the other Republican senatorial candidate, also may speak.

GIRL CLUBBED TO DEATH IN ELKHORN CASE

Marquette Pathologist Refutes Theory That Ribs Were Crushed

Milwaukee—(AP)—The theory of a coroner's physician that the murder victim whose body was found last week in a culvert near Elkhorn was killed by her ribs being crushed was refuted by the finding of Dr. Edward L. Miloslavich, Milwaukee pathologist, who advised the district attorney the girl was clubbed on the head.

Dr. Miloslavich, of Marquette university, who was figured in several murder cases, made his report to District Attorney Charles M. Williams of Whitewater. He also expressed belief that the girl was about 18 which would eliminate the theory that the victim was Alice Farkas, 14-year old Milwaukee girl. Mrs. Gazella Farkas had expressed a belief that the body found stuffed in a culvert was that of her daughter.

"The body showed evidence of a severe laceration on the right side of the skull". Dr. Miloslavich reported. "It could have been caused by a club or some other blunt instrument but as near as can be determined there was no subsequent fracture of the skull. undoubtedly other injuries were inflicted most likely by choking but the decomposition of the muscles of the neck is so far advanced that it is impossible to say what happened."

DEAD OVER 6 WEEKS

The pathologist expressed an opinion that the girl had been dead not less than six weeks and probably more than eight.

In his report to the coroner, Dr. E. T. Ridgway had found that death was due to the puncturing of one lung. Three broken ribs had pierced the lung.

The district attorney has not received report from the state pathological laboratory at Madison to which the viscera was sent.

MAY BE MINNESOTA GIRL

Hibbing, Minn. —(AP)— Belief that the body of a young woman found in a culvert near Elkhorn, Wis., may be that of his daughter who has been missing for more than a year was expressed here Wednesday by Theodore Ratica.

The description of the body agrees closely with that of his daughter. Ratica told police here Wednesday in asking that they communicate with Milwaukee detectives investigating the case.

Ratica said that his daughter, Anna, had a scar on her left shoulder similar to one reported on the left shoulder of the victim, and that in other ways the description leads him to believe the slain girl may be his daughter.

Youth Sees Byrd Off To South Pole

The dock-ends on the Hudson river were swarming with cheering, admiring youngsters as the three-masted bark, City of New York, started on its journey to the bottom of the world as the base ship for the Byrd Antarctic Expedition. In the upper photo you see part of the throng, mostly boys, that gathered to see the adventurers off. Lower left is a rare picture indeed, for the women in the light hat is Mrs. Richard E. Byrd, and seldom has she been known to pose for the camera. Paul Siple, 19-year-old Boy Scout of Erie, Pa., who is a member of the expedition, is shown at the right bidding farwell to his parents.

Blaine Says Good Word For Governor Al Smith

But Badger Senator Fails to Commit Self Directly for Candidate

Burlington—(AP)—United States Senator John J. Blaine in a street speech here Tuesday said he had no doubt that "most of his friends and supporters would vote for Al Smith for president in November." This statement was received with cheers by his audience.

"These are times when partisanship must not blind us," he said. "And we must condemn Republican silence on the scandals of Republican regimes of recent years as an accessory after the fact."

The recent death of a Chicago man by the hand of a prohibition agent was denounced by the senator, who said that the prohibition department is honeycombed with crime and bribery and has reached the state where snoopers shoot down innocent man with dumdum bullets.

Senator Blaine spent a good share of his talk attacking the two-year administration of Governor Zimmerman, candidate for reelection on the Republican party who has announced himself for Herbert Hoover.

The speech was one of a series the senator was making for Senator Robert M. LaFollette for reelection and other Progressive candidates for state office. Congressman Joseph Beck is the LaFollette candidate for the Republican nomination.

He said that Walter J. Kohler, the third gubernatorial candidate for the Republican nomination, although insisting that he is a business man and not a politician, is one of the shrewdest politicians in the country.

ROBINSON TO RECEIVE NOTIFICATION TOMORROW

Hot Springs, Ark.—(AP)—The vanguard of the thousands expected here to witness the sight of a southerner receiving notification of his selection for a place on the presidential ticket of one of the nation's major parties Wednesday was streaming into this quiet little mountain city.

The majority of early arrivals came from homes south of the Mason-Dixon line like that of the man they have come to honor—Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, who will be notified formally Thursday that he is the Democratic party's vice presidential nominee.

PROBLEMS PILING UP IN HOOVER CAMPAIGN

Candidate Must Make Plans Out of Mass of Advice from Leaders

BY JAMES L. WEST
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington—(AP) — Cross currents of advice and opinion are bearing down upon Herbert Hoover as he busies himself here determining campaign policies and deciding matters of strategy of organization.

These come largely from east and south, but some from the west, as the Republican presidential candidate confers with his chief advisers from the various sections and once gets his grip firmly upon the controls of the party machinery.

With the return of Hoover from the west, there has been an increasing pressure from New York and New England for greater activities in those sections.

There also is an increasing demand from the south for more effective organization work there. In that section too, some advisors would have the effort concentrated largely in those states where local leaders claim Hoover sentiment has been manifested.

PROBLEM GROWS

These are some of the major problems Hoover must dispose of while he is working out plans for his personal participation in the campaign, which, it is becoming more and more evident, is likely to be upon a much more extensive scale than he contemplated even as late as ten days ago.

Another subject to which the nominee will address himself this week is that of party finances. He has called in J. R. Nutt of Cleveland, national treasurer, and others in charge of money matters. The Republican party has pledged itself to make frequent reports during the campaign as to income and outgo and the first of these is expected within a short time.

The Republican nominee will carry on his conferences here in the future at general headquarters which are being set up in a building near his home. There his work will be facilitated as he can keep his office force around him and also receive larger delegations than he could at his home.

Duplisse said he was not guilty but the blind man, Fred Niland, testified that Duplisse's voice was the same as that of the man who had talked to him just before his 18 cents had been taken.

M. E. Bishop Attacks Al At Meeting

Prohibition Stand of Governor Injects Politics into Conference

Monroe—(AP)—Politics has made a bold entry into the western Wisconsin conference of Methodist Episcopal churches, having been introduced by the presiding officer in the shape of an attack of the Democratic candidate for president and the chairman of the Democratic national committee.

In an informal response to the welcome of the mayor of Monroe, Bishop Charles Edward Locke of St. Paul, presiding officer at the conference, scored the Democratic candidate Tuesday night for declining to stand by his party's platform on prohibition, saying his refusal to do so put the national election among moral issues.

"The refusal of the Democratic candidate to stand by the Democratic platform on prohibition lifts the national campaign out of politics and into morals," Bishop Locke declared.

FAIL TO NAME SMITH

"Not since the issue of slavery has a presidential election embodied a moral issue like the one at the present time." Governor Smith was not referred to by name, but only as the Democratic candidate for president.

John J. Raskob's statement that he left the Republican party "for the reason of helping free the country from the damnable affliction of prohibition," quoted by the bishop in his talk, was the subject of an attack on the chairman of the Democratic national committee chairman.

Declaring his opposition to tippling, Bishop Locke said "If I had to choose between a tippler and a dry, I would choose a tippler for a companion on a desert island, and if a wet Protestant and a dry Catholic were running for president I would vote for the dry Catholic."

RUSS REFUSE AID TO LEAGUE ON ARMS ISSUE

Claim Geneva Has Done Nothing to Solve Real Problem of Disarmament

Geneva—(AP)—Russia has refused to collaborate with present efforts of the league of nations to obtain control of the manufacture of arms.

Maxim Litvinoff, soviet vice commissar for foreign affairs, in telegraphing this decision to Sir Eric Drummond, secretary of the league, pointed out his government's contention that the league has done nothing toward solution of the problem of real disarmament.

He insisted that urgent steps should be taken to obtain definite results and avoid the risk of future wars. An attempt to supervise the production of armaments is calculated merely to mislead public opinion by holding forth false hopes of real disarmament, he asserted.

Meanwhile, the United States and Canada are cooperating in an effort to bring about the widest kind of publicity concerning the manufacture of armaments. Their representatives, Ambassador Hugh Wilson for the United States and Dr. W. A. Riddell for Canada, voiced disapproval of a draft project reported to the commission which is trying to frame a convention for the control and manufacture of arms, on the ground that it did not go far enough.

WANT PUBLICITY

Riddell and Wilson favored giving the same publicity to arms manufactured by governments as to arms made in private factories. Dr. Riddell contended that countries depending largely on private manufacture should not be expected to furnish statistics if countries depending on governmental manufacture were permitted to withhold such figures.

The draft provision with reservations attached will be sent to the league council which the league assembly will be empowered to decide whether, taking into account the differences of opinion in regard to the project, it would be wise to convoke an international conference for its discussion.

In French circles it is categorically denied that the provisional naval limitation agreement between France and Great Britain contains any secret clauses. Both British and French spokesmen deny report that the agreement provides for associated French and British fleets.

Replies from the United States, Italy and Japan are awaited before France and Great Britain publish the text of the agreement which is described here as an effort to achieve something possible and practicable by continuing what is regarded the underlying idea of the Washington naval conference, the limitation of powerful and offensive naval fighting machines.

Half Dozen Of One--Six Of The Other

That's What the Outsider Probably Would Say in Chicago-New York Tiff

New York— Gunmen and bootleggers have figured a difference of opinion as to Chicago and New York.

The New York World printed a cartoon lampooning an offer of a prize for a poster boosting Chicago's proposed world fair in 1933 and thereby started something.

The cartoon depicted a gunman leaning over the dome of an exhibition hall in the act of firing a pistol, the smoke from which formed the greeting, "Chicago Welcomes You." Another part of the cartoon showed a "British Empire Exhibit" in flames while two gentlemen with sawed-off shotguns exchange musketry in the foreground. Over the main hall waved a flag carrying the words "100 per cent American-Thompson hall."

The Chicago Daily News asked the World: "Will you state for publication whether this expresses the sentiment of the New York public regarding Chicago and its proposed world exposition?"

The World replied: "The cartoon expresses only the views of the artist, Will B. Johnstone, who is a Chicagoan by birth and who lived there many years."

PRINT CHICAGO ARTICLE

The World asked the Daily News for an article "on the public sentiment in Chicago" aroused by the cartoon.

An article in the World contributed by an editor of the Daily News asks how would New York feel if the statue of civic virtue in City Hall park was represented as a night club hostess and the dapper Mayor Walker as a tailor's dummy. The article quotes comment on the cartoon by Reuben H. Donnelley, president of the Chicago Printing corporation:

"The only difference between gangsters in New York and in Chicago is that here we ostracize them, while in New York they make them club members."

And this from Jacob L. Kesner, Chicago real estate man: "As for gunmen, New York is just as well equipped with them as we are. From what I hear some of the best importations to Chicago gangs had New York training."

A French regimental band played "The Hymn of Departure" while the statesman stood at attention on the deck of the Detroit as the American flag was hoisted to the masthead and unfurled majestically in a strong sea breeze.

Mr. Kellogg arrived from Paris on a special train placed at his disposal by the government. The train made fast time as the tracks had been cleared as far as possible to facilitate his early arrival.

Railroad workers, villagers and country people all along the route were on watch for the special and waved to it as it passed and hats [illegible] as the train went by.

Gendarmes were posted at nearly every crossing all the way from Paris and when the special neared Havre [illegible] fell into line at the side of the tracks, following the train into the city.

The band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner" as Mr. Kellogg reached the gangway where the secretary stood bareheaded until the anthem was finished. He then walked up the gangplank and was greeted at the top by the commander.

The band then played "La Marseillaise." The secretary stood at attention with the ship's officers while the French anthem was played, then, expressing a desire to rest. He was taken to his stateroom.

President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State accompanied Mr. Kellogg from Paris and also embarked on the Detroit. He stood at attention at the head of the gangplank while the band played "God Save the King."

FOUR ADRIFT ON LAKE; ONE YOUTH DROWNS

Cornell Sophomore, Rescued Twice by Companion, Is Lake's Victim

GIRL SWIMS FOR HELP

Three Survivors of Sailboat Accident Rescued by Coast Guards

Chicago—(AP)—A sailboat, caught by a treacherous gust of wind, turned over Monday evening, dumping two girls and two boys into Lake Michigan, three miles off the Winnetka shore. One boy drowned. The others, after clinging to the overturned boat for 14 precarious hours, were saved. This is their story:

Originally they had planned to attend a theatre, these four—Marjory Oleson, 17, Shirley Conlee, 18, Harold Tarrant, 20, and Fred Rummler, 21, a Cornell sophomore. Instead, they went for a sail, without telling anyone of their intentions.

When their boat went over, the four, all excellent swimmers, had no trouble in pulling themselves up on the overturned boat.

Fred Rummler, who was drowned, joked and sang as the four clutched the slippery boat bottom. It was Rummler who led in the repeated shouts for help—shouts that went unheard through the long night. When dawn broke, Rummler, exhausted from efforts to bring aid to them, slippered from the boat Tarrant dived and brought him back to the boat. Again Rummler, his energy spent, rolled off into the water, and again Tarrant brought him back. This time Tarrant, although himself fast losing his strength, managed to get Rummler across the keel of the boat.

THIRD EFFORT FAILS

The sun was well up in the heavens (about 9 o'clock, they reckoned, was the hour) when Rummler rolled off the boat for the third time. Tarrant went down after him. His hand grazed Rummler's body, but in lacked strength to grasp the sinking youth. Rummler drowned, and Tarrant himself barely managed to return to the boat.

Marjory, against the protestations of her companions, started for shore, it was she, who led indirectly to the rescue of the others. A coast guard boat, searching for them, saw her and pulled her aboard. The rescue of Tarrant and Miss Conlee followed.

OTHER NATIONS TO SIGN PEACE TREATY

48 More Governments Given Opportunity to Add Names to Original 15

Washington—(AP)—A simple, friendly gesture from an old world statesman to this country has grown into an instrument whereby the world may be brought nearer to universal peace.

From little, insignificant Albania down to Venezuela on the other end of the international alphabet, the opportunity has been opened to join with the great powers in renouncing war as set forth in the treaty signed at Paris Monday.

Credit for the wish of two countries agreeing to banish war between themselves as an instrument of national policy goes to Aristide Briand of France. Credit for extending the idea into an international pact open to every country worthy of the name goes to Frank B. Kellogg.

In keeping with the spirit of the negotiations which resulted in the treaty, invitations have been placed by American diplomatic representatives before 48 governments other than those powers which already have signed. Those invited include every sovereignty of consequence except Russia which has been bidden by France to join.

While American invitations are being delivered, several countries in the old world and the new extended themselves to be among the first to add approval after that of the powers. Jugo-Slavia was first to follow the original 15, when Foreign Minister Marinkovitch signed the pact just 15 minutes after receiving the official invitation.

From Havana came the word that Cuba intends to be the first Latin-American country to sign. The formal ceremony of adherence was set for Wednesday.

CANDIDATES PANT DOWN HOME STRETCH AS ELECTION NEARS

Primary but a Week Away and Politicians Make Last Minute Efforts to Get Votes

BY H. K. DERUS

With the primary election less than a week away candidates in the political race in Outagamie-co have rounded the last lap on the track and are panting down the home stretch each doing his best to make his last-minute exertions count and each hoping he will reach the tape first.

County offices, by the way, are the prizes for which the candidates are striving. This primary election may be termed a heat in which the best runners are selected to take part in the final race in November.

For the enlightment of those who do not understand the technical rules under which this political race is being held, it may be pointed out that candidates run on either the Democratic or Republican ticket, depending on whether he thinks the donkey or the elephant is most apt to be the favorite county animal.

The donkey by the way is the emblem of the Democratic party while the elephant belongs to the Republicans.

At the primary election a voter must vote either the Democratic or the Republican ticket entirely. He cannot split his ballot. That is if he wants a certain man for sheriff and that man happens to be running on the Democratic ticket then he must not vote for any Republicans.

HUGE INTEREST

Forgetting technicalities for the minute and returning to the campaign—men who follow the political races each year say that there is an unprecedented interest being shown by the women of the county in the battle this year.

Regardless of the fact that two women are candidates for the office of county treasurer and one of them has a personal campaign committee—an innovation in Outagamie-co politics—many of the so-called weaker sex have placed their money on candidates for sheriff and district attorney and are literally "working their heads off" in an effort to put him across.

Manifestations of the close battles and the knowledge of the closeness of the race by the various candidates is given in their efforts to keep in the lead. Thousands of various sized and colored posters and cards, readers, advertisements, sign boards and hand bills have been distributed so far in the campaign to say nothing of motion picture slides bearing pictures of the candidates and appeals for votes.

EXPECT BIG VOTE

With the announcement this week that more than 10,000 voters had registered in Appleton and with proportionate large registrations in other communities of the county dopesters are predicting one of the heaviest votes in history next Tuesday. The large registration coupled with the unusually hard fight for office by so many candidates, and the fact that it is presidential year and the Democratic party has placed a full slate of county offices in the field makes it certain a record vote will be cast this year.

In the 1926 primary election there was approximately 12,500 votes cast and it is believed that at the primary next Tuesday the total will reach 15,000 and it may go beyond that.

Another factor which will tend to bring out a record vote this year is the hard fight for nomination for governor and the fact that each of the candidates have campaign committees in the county which are determined not to leave a stone unturned in bringing out the last bit of its available strength.

ALL OF SOUTH CAROLINA'S CONGRESSMEN WIN BERTHS

Columbia, S. C.—(AP)—All of South Carolina's congressmen were renominated in Tuesday's Democratic primary in which a number of persons were barred from voting because they refused to subscribe to the rule requiring allegiance to the national ticket in order to cast a primary ballot.

With 23 boxes of 136 missing, Representative T. S. McMillan in the First district had 8,389 votes to 3,755 for I. S. Hutto. 567 for James De Treville, and 427 for P. H. Kennedy.

Representative W. F. Stevenson led Z. V. Davidson, 13,510 to 9,023, with 21 boxes missing out of the 22 in the Fifth district. In the Sixth district Representative A. H. Gasque had 14,780, W. I. Allen 2,793, and E. H. Ellerbe 3,259, and in the Seventh district Representative H. P. Fulmer had 14,956, to 7,241 for E. M. Dupre.

The rule which requires primary voters to pledge allegiance to the national nominees of the party caused several score persons in different parts of the state to be denied the ballot when they refused to take the oath. In Saludo-co a score, mostly women, requested either that they be allowed to vote under a relaxed rule or be allowed to vote as a basis for a court test of the party rule. These requests were denied by election managers.

David Wood of New York city who has been spending a two weeks vacation at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Schmidt, returned to his home Tuesday.

LETTER GOLF

HUNTERS AND NIMRODS:

If you have a hard time during these vacation days landing any FISH, why not try to bag a little GAME? It's easy—in letter golf. Par is six and one solution, which you may be able to beat, is on page 9.

F	I	S	H
G	A	M	E

THE RULES

1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes. COW, HOW, HEW HEN.

2—You can change only one letter at a time.

3—You must have a complete word of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

INDUSTRIES GET RIGHT TO DO OWN CAR SWITCHING

Railroad Commission Gives Companies Right to Charge for Work

Madison—(AP)—Industrial concerns of Wisconsin are to be permitted to receive payment from railroad companies for the switching of cars at their plants. After five years opposition, the state railroad commission has authorized a maximum switching charge of $1.96 per car at Nekoosa and $2.35 at Port Edwards to be paid the Nekoosa-Edwards Paper company by the Soo Line, the Northwestern and the Milwaukee railroads.

What the railroads will do is to pay the industry a certain amount per car for the industry doing on these cars within the plan areas what the carriers are supposed to do under their bill of lading contract.

One effect of the order will be to reduce the number of crews required by the roalroad companies. It is estimated that if similar arrangements are made for all industries of the state which seek terminal allowance approval, 67 crews will be relieved from duty. Switch engines maintained by the plants will be able to operate at less expense and with smaller crews than those which have been kept on the job by railroad companies.

The matter has been in controversy since 1923, and traveled all the way to the supreme court before it was finally settled. In 1923 the industries and railroads sought approval of such arrangement, but the railroad commission held it was not authorized by law to approve it.

Appeal as token by the companies to Dane county circuit court, where Judge A. C. Hoppmann ruled the commission must approve the payment by railroads to the industrial concerns. His ruling was upheld by the railroad brotherhoods, was consented to it, however, because the commission was bound by the high court's decision.

HOLD 49 IN WEEK FOR BREAKING RUM LAW

Fond du Lac—Eighteen men, proprietors and bartenders of soft drink parlors and roadhouses in Dodge-co, mostly at Juneau, Beaver Dam and Fox lake, appeared before A. D. Sutherland, United States court commissioner, to answer to federal warrants charging them with violating the prohibition act.

The proprietors also are charged with maintaining common nuisances. It is expected federal authorities will start padlock proceedings to close their places.

With the 18 arrested today, the total number of federal defendants to appear before Commissioner Sutherland within a week was brought to 49, the largest group ever arrested in a single Wisconsin county.

2,000 CITIZENS ARE INVITED TO MEETING ON SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Wisconsin Conference Calls Discussion - gathering to Talk Over Present System

Madison—(AP)—Almost 2,000 persons have been invited to attend a citizen-discussion meeting in Milwaukee Oct. 3 to 6, at which Wisconsin's economic, civic, social and medical problems will be reviewed and remedies sought for any fallacie in the present systems.

The meeting, sponsored by the Wisconsin conference of social work, is to be called the biennial conference on civic and social work. The 1,400 members of the conference, officials of all organizations connected in any way with civic and social betterment, and the state officials have been invited. To this group Aubrey Williams, secretary of the conference, would add any Badger citizen who is genuinely interested in seeing the causes and results of the state's social systems.

The conference is to take up these root-problems; the family unemployment, the proposed children's code, mental hygiene; race and adjustment of nationals.

Factors responsible for the disintegration of the modern family, and those which tend to hold it together as well as those agencies which are proving effective in reconstruction of broken families are to be the principal subjects of the section on the family. Among the papers to be given are: the relation of public and private agencies in family social work, unemployment, and family distress; use of family relief in solving family problems, and county organization for family social work.

The committee in charge hopes to have all elements in industry present for the section on unemployment, aiming to treat this problem in the widest possible manner. There will be papers on competition and its effect on unemployment, unemployment insurance and effects of population pressure on unemployment. Positive thought on stabilization of industry for employment and kindred unemployment prevional measures.

The conference has had a group of citizens working for some time with an expert on a codification of all laws affecting children, and it is hoped that the report of this committee will be presented to the conference. It will be a culmination of the year's work of intensive studies in counties where facts have been gathered as to actually what is happening to the illegitimate child, the one placed out on adoption, the abandoned child and the one receiving state aid. There will also be a report on strength and weaknesses of children's laws, and recommendations of laws to be presented to the 1929 legislature.

Some of the points to be treated in the mental hygiene sections of the conference are psychiatric social work in the field of family life; the place of an interpretation of education in terms of mental hygiene; what mental hygiene has to contribute toward the problem of adjustment of the delinquent boy and girl; the problem of the child in school; the problem of the child in its relation to the larger community and the nature of a mental hygiene organization for Wisconsin.

Mr. Williams said that the purpose of the conference is not to gather great lists of speakers who deal out great phrases on the social and civic lines to talk with a select group of paid social workers their problems, but to gather a large group of laymen and persons interested in the state's welfare with the experts, speakers and paid workers for a stable, recurrent discussion of specific problems looking toward their solution.

He cited the proposed children's code as one of the first specific accomplishments of previous conferences, and other definite steps of the organization toward betterment of civic and social rules and affairs.

MENASHA IS BUSY AS BIG BUILDING PROGRAM PROCEEDS

Construction of New Theatre and Bridge Will Cost $500,000

Menasha—one of the busiest places in Fox river valley is in the vicinity of the new theatre building and the Tayco-st bridge across the government canal, only a block from each other, and it is getting more congested each day. Work on the theatre has been going on for a month, but on the bridge it is just starting. Each is a quarter million dollar job. A large force of men is employed on the theatre and the number of employes on the bridge will be increased as the work progresses. The larger part of the latter crew is at present employed in strengthening Mill-st bridge over which traffic is to be detoured while construction work on Tayco-st bridge is under way.

After placing the boiler of the theatre heating plant in the basement Tuesday, the steam shovel operated by Lawrence Pierce of Appleton, who did the excavating for the main part of the building, started removing the earth on Water-st to a depth of several feet to accommodate the theatre. The main entrance will be on Main-st. On one side of Water-st a crew of government surveyors was at work taking soundings of the canal and on the other side was another crew running lines for the theatre. Both were occasionally intercepted by the steam shovel and fleets of heavy trucks carrying away the earth.

Just across the government canal which is not more than 200 feet wide, switch engines belonging to the North-Western-rd and the St. Paul-rd were holding up traffic on Federal Highway 41 while spotting cars for John Strange Paper company and Menasha Wooden Ware corporation whose plants extend for more than 1,000 feet along the south side of the canal. Additional delays are caused by boats passing through the bridge. Quite frequently it happens that automobiles, busses and trucks are lined up on each side of the bridge for several blocks waiting their turn to pass over the narrows tructure which has outlived its usefulness and will soon be replaced.

The bridge surveyors also were taking measurements for a footbridge across the canal which is to be built about 1'0 feet above the present Tayco-st structure for the accommodation of the hundreds of people employed in the different industrial plants in that part of the city. Heavy truck traffic will be detoured by way of the railroad bridge 500 feet below Tayco-st and all automobiles and light trucks will detour by way of Nicolet-blvd, Naymut and Mill-sts and across Mill-st bridge.

It is expected that the theatre building which will seat approximately 1200 people and will be equipped to accommodate road shows as well as movies, and which also will contain 12 bowling alleys, seven stores and eight modern flats will be finished by Christmas, while the contract for the bridge calls for its completion by June 1, 1929.

Neenah Rifle Team Makes Fun Of Shooting Practice

Neenah—Ping. Pong. Their tin soldier days are past and Kellogg signed the treaty; the Indians are all tame and the city is a long ways from Chicago, but you can't keep the shooting urge down. Civilization has made it a game instead of a grim preparedness job and the J. P. Hawley rifle team, according to H. E. Wieckert, thinks its great sport.

Although there may not be as much exercise to shooting as to golf, Mr. Wieckert says, aimers still manage to have sore, strained muscles after a day's practice lying prone on the grass and aiming at the targets.

You're better off if you do not go into training before a big match. Steady muscles, especially in the fingers, are the most important qualification. Smoking, if not done to excess, and normal eating do not interfere with this qualification. Coaches throughout the country have said that if you go into training before a big match you will not be your normal self at the trial and may therefore hinder instead of improve your skill.

The bitter thing about this championship business is that the big man is usually the athletic star; the man with the knotted muscles, the man with the strong physique, the man with the powerful legs. But in the shooting game, the little man gets his innings. According to Mr Wieckert, some of the best shots in the country are tabloid editions.

As in the case in most other sports, skill depreciates with age. This is due mostly to the change in eyesight which accompanies the years. The crack shooter must look through a peepsight and after he has reached a certain age his sight blurs when he peers through the contraption.

The American Legion teams recently won first place in pistol and second in rifle shooting at the state convention in Wausau. They also re-won the Schneller trophy.

Mr. Wieckert won first place in both pistol and rifle shooting contests and received two gold individual medals. He was chosen as a member of the state rifle team which will attend the national Legion convention in San Antonia in October. The six men in the state with the highest individual scores were chosen at Wausau for the team.

A good shooter is made not born. Shooting coaches claim they would rather train a man for a match who had never shot before in his life, than one who had shot incorrectly through a dozen years, because the former would have no faults to correct. Mr. Wieckert has aimed at targets since his father gave him an airgun for his fourth birthday. Mr. Wieckert's father was noted for his clay bird shooting and "it was from him" said the present champion, "that I got the shooting bug."

Bullets are not the only killers that fly in sport in this town. For the past summer months every week on the Lake-shore road Clark Jenkins, Kenneth Kuehl, Marvin Hanson, and Mr. Wieckert have been practicing with the bow and arrow.

SMITH GOES BACK TO GOVERNOR'S JOB

Attends to Executive Duties Pending Decision on Speaking Itinerary

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York—(AP)—After a week of arduous attention to his responsibilities as Democratic presidential nominee, Alfred E. Smith Wednesday stepped back into his role as governor of New York, and will play the part, unless something unforeseen occurs in the meantime, until he decides which one of three rough drafts of his speaking itinerary is acceptable.

With nothing but state business on his mind, the governor Wednesday packed up to go to Syracuse, where he had an engagement to attend Wednesday night the annual "Farm Dinner" given by Jerome D. Barnum, publisher of the Syracuse Post-Standard. Thursday he will make his yearly visit to the New York State fair at Syracuse and if weather conditions are favorable he will make a brief non-political talk in the open air.

Indications Wednesday were that Governor Smith would have something definite to say regarding his proposed stumping tour of the country by the end of next week at the latest, or probably by Labor day. He has no plans for that holiday, nor has he made any engagements between his Syracuse dates and next Monday. He expects to return to Albany Thursday night and spend a quiet weekend, but may go in for a little golf, as he did here Tuesday with his friend William F. Kenny. Campaign duties are to be forgotten—as far as the public is concerned.

NEW INVENTIONS AID HUNTERS OF WHALES

Whaling Vessels Equipped With Many Scientific Aides for Their Work

Lerwick, Shetland Islands —(AP)— The good old days of Moby Dick, when the sailor of a whaling boat muttered a prayer or a curse and then let fly his harpoon at the heaving back of a whale, are gone.

Science has come to the fore and the romance has vanished. Harpoons are no longer thrown by hand, but propelled hundreds of feet by harpoon guns. The only link with the past is the inevitable smell of blubber, which modern chemicals are doing their best to eliminate.

The latest contribution of science to the art of whaling has just been announced. The whaling fleet which has its headquarters at South Georgia islands is to go out this season equipped with wireless telephones.

The fleet will consists of a mother or factory ship on which the whale will be cut up and reduced to its many component products and three whale catchers. All will have telephone sets and direction finders, by means of which they can work their way back to the factory ship in fog or snow storms. The whalers always have fear of losing the "mother" ship in fog when no wireless is carried, and the assurance of being able to find her in any weather by the direction finder reduces considerably the time washed in waiting and also the anxiety in the strenuous life of whaling fleets.

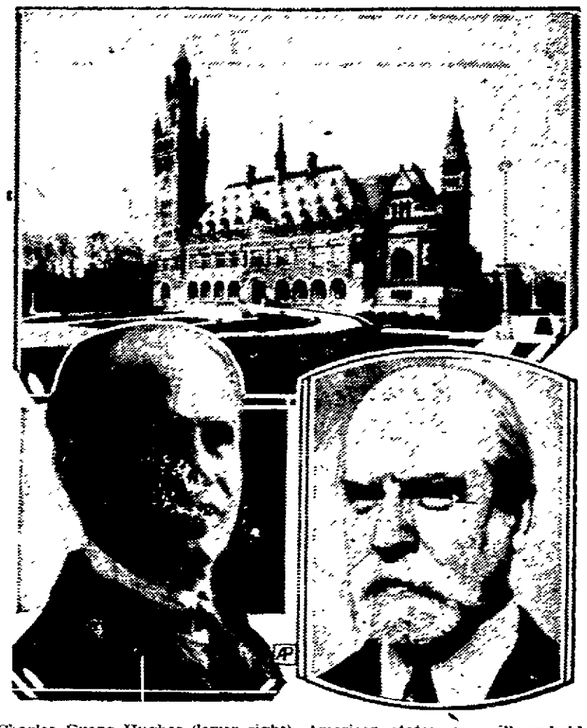

The fleet which works out of the South Georgia headquarters will be attached to the central office by telephone. The office set will be similar in power to that carried by the whale catchers, but with an additional unit enabling it to be used as a telegraph transmitter on the normal wavelength for ships.

During the last two seasons elaborate experiments have been carried out with wireless telephones on whalers. Their efficiency with unskilled operators was demonstrated when the "Southern Queer" was lost at the end of last season through striking a submerged iceberg. A call by telephone brought the fleet of whale catchers hurrying to her assistance, and all hands were taken off in safety.

"GHOST" IS WOODPECKER

Brookfield, Mo. —A new variety of "ghost" was revealed at the Country Club here when someone screwed up enough courage to go into an unoccupied "haunted cottage. Investigation proved that a woodpecker had been the cause of all the alarm. The bird had died of starvation but the evidence indicated he had fallen into the chimney and then worked his way into the stove through the stove-pipe. After days of pecking he had worked his way out of the stove.

HUGHES MAY BE WORLD JUDGE

Charles Evans Hughes (lower right), American statesman, will probably be elected a judge in the permanent court of international justice when that body meets in September in the Carnegie Peace Palace (above) at The Hague. Commendatore Dionisio Anziliotti of Italy (lower left) is president of the court.

New Lens Attachments May Provide Colored "Movies"

Pittsburg—(AP)—A lens attachment as sensitive to color as the hunam eye may transform motion pictures from the familiar black and white projections to screen recos s that are true to life in every detail of natural hue.

The device is the invention of Harold N. Cox. When it has been placed on any camera the pictures are taken in the ordinary manner, developed and printed in the usual way without artificial coloring, and projected by using a similar attachment on any projector.

The colors are said to be so accurate that the pictures have a stereoscopic effect, due to the fact that proportions are more readily conceived because of the delicate variation of tints.

Mr. Cox explains that his lens does not limit the number of colors that can be taken and reproduced. Present two-color methods, he points out, embrace only half the color circle and do not catch the complementary hues. Thus if orange nad yellow are included in an ordinary process, blue and violet must be omitted.

The inventor asserts that his device reproduces all colors, including true blues and purples which no two-color method will show.

"My invention," he says, "is purely an optical method. No special film, no special emulsions, no special developing chemicals and no special apparatus are necessary in its use. The instrument attaches instantly to any standard motion picture camera or projector.

"My method differs from black and white photography only in the use of this attachment which is combined into a small cylinder, easy to handle, quick to attach and no trouble at all to care for."

In private demonstrations Mr. Cox startled his audience by throwing on the screen a rainbow, standing out in all its natural glory. An American flag waves across the silver sheet, with its red and blue startlingly vivid. Flower beds display their brilliance. Women, wearing gowns of many colors, walk across the projection field, the sheen of their hair, the fringe on their shawls and scarfs glowing with life-like radiance.

"Soon," Mr. Cox predicts, "we shall see on the screen pictures of a rich, natural beauty that will satisfy the artistic taste of the most fastidious."

WATER CHANGES SEX

London—Science has discovered that the sex of tadpoles can be changed by the application of hot water. Two sets of tadpoles were used in the experiment. In one the temperature of the water was natural and the sex ration was normal. In the other the temperature of the water was raised to about 90 degrees when the tadepoles were five weeks old. The sex glands of the females in this set gradually assumed a masculine character and the frogs emerged as males.

SOUTH AMERICA OFFERS BIG MARKET FOR FLOUR

Washington— (AP)—South America is a potential market for 10,000,000 barrels of wheat flour and 100,000,000 bushels of wheat annually, the department of commerce says, explaining that sales are limited only by the buying power of the people.

Improvement in economic conditions, chief reason for delay in development of the market, already has resulted in an increase of wheat flour shipments from the United States to 1,575,000 barrels last year as compared with 575,0000 barrels in 1921.

Only Argentina, Chile and Uruguay produce enough wheat to supply the needs of their populations, the department points out, and other countries import about 3,000,000 barrels annually, half of it coming from American mills.

Argentina and Canada are the chief competitors of the United States, although American exports in the past few years have exceeded the combined shipments of both. Argentina is said to have something of an advantage, however, because of proximity to the ports of Brazil, which takes about 60 per cent of total shipments, and the fact that many people in south Brazil are former Argentinians who prefer Argentine flour.

GALSWORTHY ASKS CURB ON WAR BREEDING FILMS

Geneva— (AP) —John Galsworthy, British author and dramatist, was the mover of a resolution just passed by the League committee on arts and letters, recommending action to prevent moving pictures from being used to foster ill-will among nations.

The resolution was addressed to the League of Nations committee on intellectual cooperation.

A request was also received from the Austrian composer, Felix von Weingartner, urging the standardization of musical pitch so that instruments could be used in any country without alteration.

HUGHES' NOMINATION TO HAGUE COURT TO BE VOTED ON SOON

American Statesman Very Likely Will Be Member of Justice Court

BY JOSEPH E. SHARKEY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

The Hague —(AP)— The probability that an American statesman, Charles Evans Hughes will be elected a judge of the permanent court of international justice, has focused attention on this tribunal.

Mr. Hughes has been nominated by the national jurist groups of a majority of the member states of the League of Nations. The election will be during the September assembly of the League.

The movement which Mr. Hughes launched, while American secretary of state, for the United States to join the court has not countered in obtaining acceptance by other members of American reservations. But many statesmen believe these negotiations may some day be reopened.

In any event, if Mr. Hughes serves on the court as a judge his experience is expected to put him in a position to advise his fellow-countrymen concerning the worth of the tribunal and as to ways and means by which the United States may adhere to the court statutes without imperiling American national interests.

Elihu Root, another former American secretary of state, took the leading role in organizing the court. Called by the council of the League of Nations to help in framing its statutes, it was Mr. Root who devised the plan of having the judges elected by the council and assembly of the League, voting independently and separately.

The permanent court of justice is often confused with another international tribunal which is known as the permanent court of arbitration. Actually this latter tribunal is not a court at all, and is not permanent. It is an outgrowth of the Hague conference convoked by the late Czar of Russia. It is a panel composed of some 15 international jurists, four appointed by each state. It never meets as a body, but serves as a group from which countries in dispute may choose arbiters for settlement by arbitration. The American panel includes Mr. Hughes, Mr. Root, John Bassett Moore, (who recently resigned from the bench of the court of justice, and whose place Mr. Hughes is expected to fill), and Newton Baker of Ohio.

The court of justice is a court of law, as differentiated from a court of arbitration. Its chief function is interpreting the law involved in the operation of treaties. It renders advisory opinions to the council of the League of Nations. These opinions are often accepted by nations in controversy as a settlement of their dispute.

About 50 states have adhered to the statutes of the court of justice and many countries have accepted as obligatory the jurisdiction of the court in judicial disputes.

The work of the court has so increased that the judges have to spend a considerable part of the year at The Hague where they are given the rank of diplomats by the court of Queen Wilhelmina.

If Mr. Hughes is elected his term will run until 1930 when the entire court of 11 judges must stand for reelection or renewal.

4 KINGS AND PRINCE HUNT FOREST MONARCH

Stockholm —(AP)— Four kings will start out in September for a week's search in the deep forests of Sweden for a fifth monarch — the northern elk.

On his annual shooting expedition, this year King Gustav of Sweden will be accompanied by three monarchical colleagues, the kings of Spain, Denmark and Norway.

For the one week in which elk-shooting is permitted by law, the four kings, with Prince Charles of Sweden, father of the Belgian crown princess, will penetrate the forests of the north and live the life of peasant-hunters.

The expedition will terminate the first official visit of a Spanish king to Sweden. The three Scandinavian kings are intimate friends and have frequently been together on such excursions. They are all fond of a simple life, and this fact has proved a bond of union.

Since Ging Gustav objects to any special arrangements on his behalf, the three royal visitors are promised nothing more than the ordinary fare of the country people. Far off the paved roads the kings and their followers will sleep in foresters' huts and the royal quartet may even have to bunk together.

Raskob Says Rich Men Drifting Toward Smith

St. Louis— (AP) — Greatly encouraged, he said, by the reports Democratic leaders of eight middlewestern states laid before him, John L. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, Wednesday was to confer with Senator Harry B. Hawes, chairman of the Democratic Central Regional committee, and a few others in the seclusion of a country club.

After hearing of the political situation in Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kentucky, and Tennessee in a series of state conferences Tuesday, Raskob said that nothing he had heard had changed his conviction about the election of Gov. Smith in November.

Raskob and other Democrats will depart late Wednesday for Hot Springs, Ark., to attend the notification ceremonies for Senator Robinson, vice presidential nominee.

In his opening speech to visiting Democratic chieftains, Raskob said he understood the Republicans were seeking to raise a campaign fun of $6,000,000 to $8,000,000. He added they might not be able to get so large a fund "because of the drift of wealthy men toward Smith."

"These business men," he said, "are not afraid of Smith. They are assured he will keep his pledge not to oppose an honest tariff and not to disurb legitimate industries.

"The east has never understood the farm problem," Raskob continued. "I have never met a man, including myself, who understood the provisions of the McNary-Haugen bill. Gov. Smith has arranged for a survey by one of the greatest students of economics in the United States, Prof. Seligman of Columbia university. If the governor is elected he will be able to recommend an agricultural relief program which will meet the approval of the east and satisfy the west."

MAINE ELECTS ITS STATE OFFICIALS ON SEPTEMBER 10

Election in New England State Is Two Months Ahead of Others

BY NELSON G. MORTON.

Portland, Me. — (AP) — Maine, still clinging to its custom of electing its state officers and members of congress nearly two months ahead of the other states, is preparing to give the politicians their quadrennial opportunity to expatiate on the significance of the outcome on the national election in November. Election is Monday, September 10.

Sen. Frederick Hale, republican, who is chairman of the senate committee on naval affairs, is a candidate for reelection for a third term. Three of the four congressmen from this state, all of whom are republicans also seek reelection. Herbert E. Holmes, a Lewiston attorney, is Senator Hale's democratic opponent.

The contest for governor lies between William Tudor Gardiner of Gardiner, republican, and Edward C. Moran, Jr., of Rockland, democrat. Gardiner, a lawyer, is a former speaker of the Maine house of representatives and a World War veteran. Moran is a businessman.

As usual in a presidential election year, national party leaders have given considerable attention to the Maine campaign and speakers from other states have been brought here to urge the voters to consider the "moral effect of their balloting upon the country as a whole. The popular designation of Maine as a "barometer state" persists in the face of cold facts. Regardless of the result of state elections Maine has given a plurality for every republican candidate for president except in 1912 when Wilson carried the state.

Beginning with Hannibal Hamlin, later vice-president, who was elected governor in 1856, Maine has elected a republican governor in all but four instances.

Maine has sent only two democrats to the senate. One, Charles F. Johnson, was elected in 1910. The other, Obadiah Gardner, was appointed in 1911 to complete an unexpired term. With f w exceptions the state's delegation to the national house of representatives has been solidly republican.

Two years ago Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, republican, was reelected for a second term by a majority of 20,000 over Ernest L. McLean, democrat, the vote being: Brewster 100,776, McLean, 80,748. In 1924, the last presidential election year, Brewster received a majority of 36,655 over William R. Pattangall.

Senator Hale's margin over his democratic opponent in 1922 was 26,366. At the last senatorial election in Maine, a special election in November, 1926, to fill a vacancy, Arthur R. Gould, republican, received a majority of 45,372 over Fulton J. Redman, democrat.

In a recent campaign speech Senator Hale said:

"It is not enough for Maine to go republican by a small majority. If we give a majority of 10, 15 or 20 thousand votes, the rest of the United States is going to say we have lost our grip. Maine must go republican by more than 40,000."

The names were drawn Monday afternoon by Court Commissioners Bert Dean, Seymour and Dr. F. C. Babcock, Appleton.

SOMEONE MUST DO THE WORK

The genius of America is work, efficient, intelligent work. As witness:

Thirty years ago found Governor Smith poor and unknown but strong of body and clear of mind. Today finds him one of the principal contenders for the presidency of the United States. What accomplished this marvelous advance? Work, clean, honest. intelligent work. Step by step Smith advanced upward because of his accomplishments. When a man can run a million votes ahead of his ticket in the state of New York there is a sound fundamental reason in the conviction of the people of that commonwealth that he has been able to handle the great problems of an intricate government with rare constructive ability. When Smith was elected to an office he not only brought to it intelligent ability but he devoted himself wholeheartedly to the performance of its duties. He had no time for shirkers. With coat and vest off he ploughed into the work at hand. His use of the oral word has not been for the mere purpose of attracting attention or favors but to explain and convince. No one could picture Smith as governor of Wisconsin for six years telling the people that their public utilities had been plundering them through his administration. Had such a thing been taking place there would have been some sore heads among the public utilities.

Secretary Hoover found himself at man's estate with an education gleaned from the few hundred dollars his parents had left him, but he was in overalls at common labor and without means. His rise to the leadership of the Republican party has been brought about in the same manner, though in different fields of activity from Smith's. The answer again is work, clean, honest, intelligent work. Everything to which he was set has been done in an orderly, able manner, and his problems were intricate, exceedingly difficult, requiring high organizing ability. With Hoover too speech has never been used for the purpose of conveying misleading information or propaganda but always to explain or clarify a situation or a program. He is neither a spell-binder nor a platform gladiator. He wouldn't stoop to make a promise he didn't honestly expect to honor. Picture Hoover if you can as governor of Wisconsin for six years with a hand-picked railroad commission telling the people that the utilities, in spite of the power reposed in him, were plundering them.

Fortunately for the country nearly all of our presidents have traveled about the same road, though Washington was born well-to-do and Roosevelt with a "silver spoon," yet both restless, tireless workers, neither trying to grace the platform with a lot of flattering words to garner votes but each making use of the spoken or written word for the honest purpose for which it was intended.

That government prospers best which has two political groups, each led by the most able men within them. That government prospers least that is led or governed by a political party or faction whose leaders are incompetent, inefficient, idle talkers. How often have we selected men for office misled by a lot of blarney from the platform, only to find that we had elected good talkers, fine handshakers, splendid pipe smokers, great story tellers, who were prompt at one thing and one thing only, getting their pay checks on the exact day due.

EARNING THE DEATH PENALTY

Apparently Chicago gangland moved up to Milwaukee on Monday and put on a little show for the residents of that city by "bumping off" Tony Kuzmanovich, leading bootlegger, with the fatal slugs blown out of a sawed-off shotgun.

The law of the Chicago underworld is cruel, heartless, cynical. It does not lose its good customers without a fight and a vicious one. The authorities are satisfied that Kuzmanovich changed breweries. That is a sufficient offense, seemingly, to earn the death penalty.

The gangsters however reckoned without a full understanding of the situation. If arrested they will find that a trial before Wisconsin jurors and in a Wisconsin court is a vitally different affair than a trial in Chicago. Indeed, it is the Wisconsin record of convictions that has served so efficiently in keeping the gangsters out of our territory.

THE LONDON AIR MAIL

The "air war" staged over London by the British air ministry ended as suddenly as it began, but the "war" of the newspapers and political leaders as to what the imitation battles proved is merrily going forward.

The groups advocating huge military air forces maintain that the mimic warfare showed the immediate need of a greatly enlarged air force. They want an adequate defense force at home and a big enough bombing force to frighten any potential enemy. Liberal and labor groups, on the other hand, suspect propaganda to intimidate the populace into consenting to "building a huge air arm at ruinous cost." They point out that the 280 tons of bombs dropped on London by the Germans during the war killed only 670 persons as compared with 11,364 killed in street accidents in four years.

Others intimate that the spectacle proved the impossibility of defense against air attack and suggest that the people should be taught at once how to don masks at a moment's notice, how to inter thousands of dead bodies in the least time, and how to render first aid in such an emergency. Still others, among them the war prime minister, Lloyd-George, say the recent air maneuvers over London have proved the need of cutting down air armament, and that "pacts are not of the slightest use unless you tackle disarmament."

In a few days England and the rest of the world will have dropped this particular controversy for a fresher one. The fact really proved by the whole affair is that a wide variety of interpretations can be placed on the same series of events, and also that each interpretation is based not on the events themselves but on the personal opinions or bias of the interpreter.

LETTERS AND PICTURES

President Mustapha Kemal made a speech in Constantinople the other day regarding his order substituting the Latin alphabet for the Arabic, and then wrote it out on a menu card to show that he practiced what he preached. Here is his speech:

> Within two years the Latin alphabet will be universally used in Turkey, and we shall prove that our intelligence is equal to that of the civilized world after banishing the incomprehensible Arabic characters, which are responsible for 80 per cent of Turk illiteracy.

It may be that the greatest gift of the ancient Romans to world enlightenment was that same alphabet, which slowly overspread nearly all of Europe and America and provided a simple, easily wielded instrument for writing human language.

Let no one, though, scorn the gift of the Arabs to modern enlightenment and progress. It was they who gave the world the 10 symbols with which civilized mankind writes numbers and does its figuring. These two inventions, Latin letters and Arabic numerals, are the two great instruments of civilization.

WOMEN AS PILOTS

The exploit of Lady Heath, British airwoman, who piloted a commercial plane carrying 25 passengers across the English channel on one of its regular trips, suggests the possibility that aviation will become a new field in which women can exercise their talents.

There is no reason why women should not be as good pilots as men. The job calls for an excellent physique and good powers of endurance, but does not require great physical strength. No one has ever demonstrated that the qualities most needed by a competent aviator are not possessed by women as well as by men.

It is entirely possible that the future will see many women piloting commercial planes about the country—indeed, "probable" is no doubt a better word than "possible." Woman has invaded every other field; why not this one?

Lowenstein, the Belgian financier whose estate shrank to terrifically just before his death, leaves only $40,000,000 to his wife and children. Don't you like the way we are able to say "only $40,000,000"?

"McAdoo's Silence Arouses Gossip," says newspaper headline. Now if Senator Heflin should be silent—that would be NEWS!

Eastern man was arrested for arson. But the police exonerated him, of course, when they found only an automatic cigar lighter in his pockets.

A new rule bars Radcliffe girls from taking airplane rides. These flighty modern girls must be curbed.

SURGICAL RELIEF FOR VARICOSE VEINS

In very troublesome cases of varicose veins it is sometimes necessary and advisable to resort to surgery. To the patient the excision of a portion of two or three large veins may seem a formidable procedure. It is no trifle, to be sure, but to the modern surgeon with modern methods it is a simple operation and one that earns the patient's gratitude, because in cases where surgical relief is resorted to there is no other relief to be had. Sometimes the result of the operation is not so perfect as the doctor and patient hoped for, but take it all in all, if I were afflicted with varicose veins beyond hope of remedy through hygienic means, I'd gladly give a good surgeon carte blanch with my legs and I believe I'd be satisfied with anything better than a 50 per cent relief.

In the last two or three years another surgical method of less formidable aspect has been brought into quite general use, and in view of the great prevalence of varicose veins and the fact that surgery offers only the chance of any permanent relief in troublesome cases, this newer method should interest many sufferers and their physicians, for it is a method which any good physician or a physician who is any good can use with complete success. It is called the "chemical" treatment, and consists of injections of suitable chemical medicines into the vein at one or more points.

These injections are given as are ordinary hypodermic injections. They may be administered either in the doctor's office or at the patient's home. The treatment does not disable the patient nor interfere with regular occupation.

For smaller varicosities a solution is used which is painless and self sterilizing, and injections are given every second day until all the veins are obliterated. For larger varicosities another solution is required, which causes some burning and cramping pain for a minute or two after each injection. The patient may go home 10 minutes after the injection. Just what the chemicals are is no concern of the layman—leave all that to your doctor. I referred to this chemical obliteration of varicose veins here a few weeks ago and numerous readers inquired about the identity and address of the doctor who uses this method. Any doctor who is up to date is competent to give the chemical treatment, and the complete details of technic, and so forth are published in the medical journals and available to any physician who is not beyond the pale.

When I spoke of the chemical treatment before, I added a warning about "institutes" and other quack outfits. Since issuing that warning I have heard from some of the "institutes" and other quack outfits. I believe if I were ill and in need of any kind of medical care I'd try every other possibility before I ventured to seek advice from anything or anybody purporting to be an "institute." Old Doctor Kidd in his palmiest days was a fairly decent sort of flimflam artist compared with the slick rascals who hide behind "institutes," "clinics," and other impersonal titles today.

If a doctor is worthy of public confidence, if he has confidence in himself, why should he not practice under his own name? The main reason for "institutes" and "clinics" is that under these aliases doctors of inferior ethical standard can get away with a lot of tricks for which an honest practitioner would be condemned.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Friends Squelched While You Wait

I am an enthusiastic follower of your teachings and have proved to my satisfaction everything I have read in your column. But today when I tried to pass on your views about "cri" to some friends I encountered resistance. They grant one may catch the germs from an individual who harbors them but they also believe one must be in a "weakened" condition in order to catch a "cold," as from sitting in a draft when prespiring from overexertion. As proof they give the fact that their own family doctor has warned them against such carelessness. I am depending on you to print a rejoinder that will squelch them. (Miss O. W.)

Answer—I imagine very few physicians would take issue with the theory your friend's family doctor entertains. I am one of the few, but my views on this question are rather unsound in the estimation of most old timers. If by a "cold" your friends mean lameness or stiffness of muscles, I agree with the family doctor that one is likely to suffer such discomfort as a consequence of sudden chilling after severe exertion. But there is no scientific evidence that one is more likely to contract any germ disease, any infections disease, when one is exposed to cold, wet, chilling and the like, than when one is most careful to avoid that. Indeed the experience of polar explorers rather suggests that extremely bitter exposure to cold and wet and chilling in sweat saturated clothing rather keeps a man immune. The experience of such men is of far greater weight than the experience of us mollycoddled folk here at home, is it not? Of course not, if your mind is grooved for the old obsession. You may get considerable enjoyment from arguing about this with your friends, but let me assure you that you will never, never convert any of them to a more optimistic attitude.

THE CANDLING PROCESS

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

GOADS FOR GENIUS

If it had not been for the fact that the Edinburgh Review needed copy of the very kind that T. B. Macaulay could supply, the chances are ten to one that we never would have had what we know today as "Macaulay's Essays." Sometimes we assume that the great literary geniuses did their stuff almost in a vacuum, as it were, writing the things they did write almost on a preordained schedule. When hard facts are consulted it is usually found that there was some good that spurred them on and that without the goad they would have taken a different form.

It happened that soon after Macauley left college Jeffery, the editor of the Edinburgh Review, needed another essayist for his staff of contributors. There had been a death in his magazine family, leaving many pages of each issue to be filled with no one to fill them. Macaulay contributed his "Essay on Milton" and it not only proved a good substitute for the copy formerly furnished by the old contributor but a great improvement.

From that day on until the end of his life Macaulay continued to contribute essays to the Edinburgh Review. His mind ranged over the whole period of literature and history and whenever there was some contemporary event that was capable of literary treatment Macaulay would seize upon it and make an enemy out of it. When some one brought out a new life of Addison he would devote to it, with the true journalist's instinct, a few paragraphs, making it of timely interest, almost a newspaper story, and then would launch forth on his own analysis of the life and works of Addison. Or perhaps some historical event was recalled by a contemporary happening and Macaulay would make it the theme of an essay.

He needed the money because he was supporting a number of dependents and the Edinburgh Review needed the copy. So the arrangement was perfect. It was said that during some 30 years that he was a contributor, the Edinburgh Review sold well or poorly depending on whether it had an essay by Macaulay or not.

Macaulay himself did not look upon these essays as literature. He regarded them as more journalism for which he was paid a certain amount of money that he needed to maintain his family. He looked upon himself as a politician, a member of parliament and a member of the government for many years; in literature he looked upon himself as a historian and it was in that field that he wished to make a name for himself.

The essays were a bi-product, just as sometimes a novelist or poet will conduct a column to help him make a living. Macaulay usually wrote the essays early in the morning, arising with the sun and writing an hour or two before he had to begin the real work of the day in parliment.

[illegible] he about them that he refused for a long time to collect [illegible] form. They did not make material, he thought, but were more ephemeral comments on passing books and events. He was the last one to suspect that college students for many generations would be studying the essays in the classrooms.

It was not until an enterprising publisher in America was bringing out a pirated edition that Macaulay decided to collect them himself. This was before the day of the international copyright and he decided that if an American could make money out of the essays without paying royalty as well publish the essays himself.

Macaulay's is not the only case of literature being determined by a publisher's need of copy. Laab's essays were the result of exactly the same condition. He wanted to be a dramatist, not an essayist, but a magazine needed essays, not dramas, and so he wrote essays and made a great name with them.

OUR TREES

COTTONWOOD

Because it is often the only tree within miles and because it serves a wide variety of purposes the cottonwood is highly prized by the settlers of the great plain regions.

In the almost treeless sections between the Mississippi river and the [illegible] mountains the cottonwood often is the only local wood available [illegible] planted as a wind [illegible] and supplies lumber, fuel and friendly shade for farm homes. The cottonwood, being a rapidly growing tree reaching a height of 100 feet and over and a diameter of from two to five feet, is particularly adapted to planting in this region.

The name cottonwood is applied to eight or ten closely related species that grow in the United States of which eastern, swamp and black cottonwoods are the most important. Eastern cottonwood is widely distributed throughout the country east of the Rocky mountains. Swamp cottonwood grows in the southeast and black cottonwood in the northwest.

Lumber cut from these three varieties is used principally for boxes and crates. Its light weight and ability to take nails without splitting combined with good color for stenciling and lack of odor, make it suitable for a wide variety of boxes and [illegible] one-half of the cut of cottonwood is used for this purpose.

Cottonwood veneer in the form of plywood is widely used in furniture and musical instruments and for similar uses where plywood panels are required. Other uses include vehicles, planing mill products, agricultural implements, wooden-ware and trunks. Cottonwood also is used for the manufacture of high-grade book paper and excelsoir.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York — In a single morning's session, the conflicting customs of the world march past a judge who holds the bench of an east side court.

It is not a simple task. It is not even a task to which one can apply such wisdom as was presumed to be Solomon's. It is a liberal education in the other fellow's point-of-view. And it involves the necessity of trying to adjust this acquired attitude of mind to the American slant. What may have been a tradition in Odessa becomes a crime on First Avenue and what may have been a time-honored code of south Italy becomes a penitentiary offense when practiced on East Tenth Street. Here is a great study in the laws of good and evil, a matter's degree in society's social patterns and a sermon on why mankind needs to be tolerant.

The problems of the Jewish quarter are not the problems of the Irish, the Russian, the Italian or the Bohemian sections.

If you're interested, come with me for a moment to such a courtroom: Here stands an embittered daughter of Isreal, her full red lips quivering, her great black eyes flashing despair, her wealth of black hair half tumbling as she hides her face in sensitive hands. She is flanked on one side by a stout and indignant mother and one the other by half a dozen male relatives . . . tired looking old men who wear their skull caps into court and sit twisting their ringleted whiskers.

It seems that, somehow, she had saved a thousand dollars. Or someone had died and left her this amount It seems she had reached the age when, according to the oldest tribal customs, girls of her age and race should be married. It seems that she had absorbed the American customs from her experiences as a wage earner in the cloak-and-suit business. It seems that the family went to a "schadschen," or marriage broker — oh yes, they still have marriage fixers for the daughters of the east side. It seems that the "schadschen" told of a "good marriage," produced a man, was given assurance that the girl could produce a fat dowry of $1000 — oh yes, there are still spots in America where the man demands a dowry of his bride-to-be. It seems that the girl's money was turned over by way of dowry, that she refused to marry the man, and the man, being a bit Americanized, jumped out with the money.

Tragedy crashed upon the house. The money gone, the daughter turned against her kin, and still unmarried. Across the room sat the squat, sleek, greasy man to whom her hand had been given. He had been arrested for stealing her money. But the great problem was not the money or the marriage but the daughter produced of the melting pot. What of her? That was the judge's problem. How to bring an understanding between children and old-world parents?

In another seat was a girl of 16 — a Sicilian. Here was an old story of the crowded tenements. Scores of families to a few rooms. Daughters and sons, fathers and mothers, wives and husbands mingling in the sardine-like propinquity of the herded houses.

And in this scramble and chaos of lives the girl had been "wronged." she was to have a child. The man could not be forced to marry, he already was married. And so she told the story of her Sicilian code —either her father or she herself must kill the man. So she had waited for him one night and shot. She had escaped, gone home and now she had surrendered.

And what was the judge to do? She had acted merely in accordance with her social creed?

"LOVE FOR TWO"

by Ruth Dewey Groves

1928 By N. E. A. Service, Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

BERTIE LOU WARD, on the eve of her wedding to ROD BRYER, receives a paper knife as a gift from LILA MARSH, who had turned Rod down because he was not wealthy. The feel of the metal chilled Bertie Lou, and the thought that it was a dagger to pierce her happiness flashed across her mind so that her dreaming anticipation turned to miserable foreboding. But she courageously resolves not to be jealous of Rod's past love affair. His future is in her keeping.

Bertie Lou receives a second blow to her pride when she accidentally overhears one bridesmaid ask another if she thought the bride liked being second choice. She goes through the ceremony in a daze, but when Rod whispers "My wife" with a world of adoration in his eyes, She knows that she would rather be second choice than to give him up.

They spend an ideal honeymoon in a mountain resort, and Bertie Lou almost forgets the shadow cast by the predatory ex-Sweetheart until they return and find Lila acting as dictator in their apartment on the ground that she knows what Rod likes.

Both the bride and her mother resent this determination of Lila's to annoy them, and Mrs. Ward takes the first opportunity to advice Bertie Lou that she thinks they would be happier if they could avoid meeting Lila in the future. Bertie Lou says she will do everything to keep Rod loving her, but nothing to make him hate Lila.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V

"I hope that's not a caller," Mrs Ward remarked as Bertie Lou left the bedroom to see if Rod was answering the door.

"I'll see who it is," she heard him say and then Bertie Lou ducked back to scramble into a dress.

In a moment they both went out and found Rod untying a square box that a boy had delivered.

"Thank heavens you aren't having ocmpany," his mother-in-law said fervently. "Give me my hat, Bertie Lou. Where did I put it? On the phonograph, I think. Here it is. Lock the door behind me and don't answer any more doorbells. The whole town's likely to begin calling on you after supper."

Bertie Lou kissed her warmly and thanked her and then turned back from the door to discover Rod standing over the square box with a strange expression twisting his features into a cross between a grin and a scowl. Bertie Lou came over and looked into the box.

Nothing more impressive than a square of devil-food cake met her gaze. But it might as well have been a scropion from the way she drew back from it.

"With Lila's compliments," Rod explained, glancing at a card in his hand. "Wishes us happiness."

Bertie Lou thought it was very silly. Just the sort of thing Lila would do. But she said nothing of what she thought to Rod. Lila was his concern. Bertie Lou knew that some wives sneered at the girls their husbands had gone with, when they knew them. It was a cheap thing to do, she believed.

"Shall we have it for dessert?" she asked quietly, after she had recovered from the surprise it had occasioned her.

"I hate the damned stuff," Rod replied. "Throw it in the garbage pail."

"Let's see first what mother left for us," Bertie Lou said, hiding her satisfaction. They went to explore the kitchen and found what Bertie Lou hoped would be there— a big, juicy blackberry pie.

They set about preparing their first dinner in their own home. Bertie Lou found peeled, cut potatoes, ready for French frying, a thick steak, corn, lettuce and tomatoes, and a melon.

"I can cook that steak to the queen's taste," Rod volunteered. "That means you'll like it, Bebs."

"Oh, can you?" Bertie Lou cried. "Gosh, that's lucky, because a steak is the same as a Chinese laundry ticket to me. Guess mother couldn't think of anything easier, though I can do the potatoes, and here's the salad dressing already mixed. We're sure of that, anyhow. And I don't see how we can spoil the melon, but if we do there's still the pie. I wish you were a New Englander. Then I wouldn't have to worry about breakfast."

"You won't anyway," Rod told her. "Just you sit opposite me and I won't know whether I'm eating toast or shoe leather."

Half an hour later he knew he had spoken hastily. For never was shoe leather toughed than that steak. And Bertie Lou's potatoes were a pale, soggy mess. The corn was boiled too hard, but the melon was coolly delicious and the pie made up for all disappointments.

"If you can stand an eatless week I'll have mother teach me to cook," Bertie Lou promised. She had a burned finger and a cut thumb, but she had no tears for a culinary fiasco. The idea of a birde weeping over the kind of dinner that lay before them would have made her lough. The new way was to turn in, tackle and master—well, if not master, at least get a toehold on the art of cooking.

She made no apologies. Her job when she was single had been to be a good stenographer. That she was. And her engagement hadn't lasted long enough to permit her to take up cooking. She had worked in an office right up to the day before her wedding. And Rod had taken all her spare time.

But she made a mental note to repeat the dinner a week later and make it one to be remembered as well, as they'd be likely to remember the disaster accompanying the first one.

"I think we'd better go and see your mother," she said when they had finished clearing the table and washing the dishes. Rod, with a cretonne apron, had wiped them with as much pleasure as he'd have had polishing a new car. But the hour was not without accident.

He couldn't keep his eyes off Bertie Lou's lovely arms plunged deep into a pan of suds—she'd added a half cup soda flakes to the dish water and the foamy consequence all but flooded the sink—her thick, heavy, gleaming hair and, most alluring of all, the exquisite turn of her deliciously round troat.

As a result of his gloating over having such a darling all as his own he dropped a cup and broke it. Bertie Lou smiled bravely over it but she felt badly because she knew the cup couldn't be replaced. It was from a set her mother had had when first she was married. Rod thought she was awfully sweet about it.

"Let's wait until it gets dark before we leave the house," he said in answer to Bertie Lou's suggestion that they visit his parents. "I don't want to be meeting a lot of people on the way home."

Bertie Lou noted how naturally he spoke of his father's house as "home." Habits were strong with Rod. She the thought brought Lila back to her mind. She wished she were strong-minded enough to forget her.

She was rather quiet while they unpacked and put away the things in their suitcases. She found the dresser drawers and wardrobe shelves lined with pink tissue paper, ready to receive her trousseau. Everything in her new home was dainty and pretty. But it was very simple and inexpensive. Except the gifts from Rod's parents, who, while not wealthy, could afford to make their only son a few good wedding presents.

No one disturbed them; perhaps the absence of a light in their living room discouraged visitors from dropping in. When they slipped out to pay a call to Rod's family the street was almost deserted, except a few blocks south, near the pool room. They walked north and circled the center of town.

Thus, undelayed, they were able to see both Rod's parents and Bertie Lou's. She felt a gratifying sense of newly-acquired importance. People, even relatives, were very nice to brides, she discovered. Trying to figure why, she vaguely realized that everyone sees oneself in either one or the other of a pair of happy lovers.

It was nearly midnight when they returned to their flat. At the top of the stairs Bertie Lou halted. "Carry me over the threshold for luck," she [illegible] and Rod unlocked the door, threw it open and then picked her up [illegible] and strode into the living room.

He did not put her down at once. She was light as a feather in his heavily-muscled arms. And her lips were cool and sweet.

Rod was enjoying them immensely when a roar of laughs burst out and the room was flooded with bright light from a dozen flashes. Then someone turned on the electric lamps and disclosed a crowd of young people in festive attire, [illegible] the scene they'd just witnessed.

Bertie Lou struggled out of Rod's arms and faced them with a sinking feeling of helplessness. However had they got in? Then she remembered that the back door had been left unlocked. Rod had spoken of it at his mother's but they hadn't worried about it.

"Come on, we've got a loving cup!" There was a concerted move to the dining room and Rod and Bertie Lou were swept along. There, in the middle of a small dining room table, was a punch bowl filled with a brownish liquid and floating fruit.

"Let's have some music!" A lot of dipping and refilling at the bowl and then they were dancing, crowding the small rooms and stumbling over the new furniture.

Bertie Lou grimaced over the punch and whispered to Rod not to drink it. "It's vile," she warned.

"For goodness sake, let's give them something to eat," she said the next time she had a chance for a hurried word with Rod. "Run down to the delicatessen and get something, quick. Before they wreck the place."

Rod slipped out as soon as he could get away. When he returned he was loaded with enough liverwurst, cheese and other ready-to-eat foods to supply a young army. Marcella came out to the kitchen to help Bertie Lou.

"We gave Lila the slip," she continued [illegible] there were alone. And then she saw the change that came over Bertie Lou's countenance, [illegible] the tactlessness of her remark.

THE NEW Saint AND Sinner

By Anne Austin

©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

"You see, Sandy, it's this way," Tony Tarver began. "I'm not very clever, but for some reason or other boys—men, too—like me. Sandy, I don't feel wicked because I let men make love to me. Most of 'em aren't men anyway—just college boys who feel like they're learning life in a big way, breaking their hearts and mine. Gosh! It's natural for us kids to want to get as much kick out of being young as we can, isn't it?" she demanded of the lanky, silent figure beside her in the car.

"Yeah?" Sandy grinned, but his bronze-and-green freckled eyes were narrowed very intently upon Tony's beautiful face.

"Oh, I know you don't play around, kissing here, kissing there," Tony dismissed his implications a little angrily. "But—you're different. You're so crazy about engines that you don't care what kind of engine a girl's heart is, and you get such a kick out of flying."

Sandy grinned. "Who's the guy?" he drawled.

Tony laughed and flushed. "This is my story and I'm going to tell it in my own way," she retorted. "What I've been trying to tell you, Sandy, is that I adore being made love to by good-looking men who happen to 'click' with me. They don't even have to be awfully good-looking, if they've got that certain something that makes me get all excited and quivery and thrilly inside."

"Yeah?" Sandy encouraged, a little grimly. Tony could not see that his right hands was knotted, white-knuckled, in the big pocket of his khaki overalls.

"Well, Sandy, to be perfectly truthful, it goes stale too darned quick." Tony acknowledged honestly. "The boy gets to be an awful nuisance, and I'm sorry as the devil, and hate to hurt the poor dear's feelings, and wish to goodness I could be one of those 'one-man' women you read about—"

"Who's the guy you're half-engaged to?" Sandy demanded inexorably.

Tony groaned, then laughed. "All right, all right! I won't stall any more. The 'guy' is Richard Warrington Talbot. I do submit that that name would look swell on my visiting cards."

Sandy grinned, and Tony retorted to his unspoken thought: "Of course I'm not such a fool as to marry a man for the sake of seven euphonious syllables to engrave on a calling card. But, oh, Sandy, he is so handsome, and any other girl in town would be tickled silly, but—"

"Pretty," Sandy corrected laconically. Knows it. Likes himself Likes you because you're pretty enough even for him."

Tony giggled. "That's the first compliment you ever paid me, Sandy . . . but you're right, and I can't go ahead with this engagement and I don't know how to get out of it. But there's something else, Sandy, not just about me, but about Peg and Pat and me as a family."

"Yeah?" Sandy's clenched right fist slowly relaxed.

BACHELOR GIRL VERY PROMPT IN PAYING DEBTS

MARGARET STEWART

"BACHELOR girls pay their bills more promptly and conscientiously than men."

That is the conclusion of Miss Margaret Stewart, of Ogden, Utah, who during the past eight years has collected $1,000,000 in actual cash from delinquents. As the head of a large credit bureau Miss Stewart has had ample opportunity to study the psychology of payees and non-payees.

"Generally speaking, women possess a keener sense of justice and fairness than do men," she said. "Although a woman may endeavor to drive a closer bargain, once she has assumed an obligation she determines to discharge it to the best of her ability. This is true so long as a woman earns by her own efforts.

"I have found, however, that after she gives up an active business career and assumes the responsibilities of a home and family, and the husband alone provides the finances, she is not free to carry out her own desires. Then it frequently happens that she does not give old obligations such prompt attention."

WHITE TROUSERS NEW FAD OF GIRLS

Provincetown, Mass.—(AP)—It is becoming more and more difficult to distinguish between men and girls at this old Cape Cod town, now a popular summer resort and artist colony.

Long white trousers and bandanna handkerchiefs, the newest articles in young women's attire, here, have achieved wide popularity. The white trousers are worn in conjunction with men's white shirts and are to be seen everywhere.

Bandannas of gay colors are smoothly wrapped around the head and tied, with the ends loose, at the back of the neck.

Native Hills Inspire Author To Give Up Career

Maristan Chapman, Chattanooga author, prefers a ramshackle hut in the Tennessee mountains and her writing to the business opportunities she found in the cities. Her days are filled with working and writing, and in the evening she flivvers to town for her mail.

Sewanee, Tenn.—(AP)—

"If we could have remembrance now
And hee, as in the days to come—
The swift intangible romance of fields
at home.
The gleams of sun, the showers—
For, looking back when years shall flow
Upon this olden day that's now
We'll see, romantic in dimm'd hours
These memories of ours."

Joseph Conrad wrote that as an introduction to Romance. Perhaps Maristan Chapman of Chattanooga, author of 'Happy Mountain,' caught its spirit, for in this first book of hers she has embodied the "swift, intangible romance of fields at home," her own home—the mountains of Tennessee.

Maristan Chapman wanted to know about the Southern mountain people—what they thought about and what their ambitions were. Four years ago she and her husband designed and built a house car, which they called "The Nomad," and for two years moved and lived among the mountain people. These were the people nearest the little black haired Tennessee girl.

Born in Chattanooga in 1895, she spent her girlhood days there. Later she went to Sewanee, where her father entered the ministry. There again her home was in the heart of the Cumberlands.

When the war broke out Mary Ilsley, who became Maristan Chapman journeyed to London and there became secretary to the English parliament member. She was called on to give lectures on business science in war training schools, wrote for magazines and spent a part of her time in nursing wounded soldiers. Following her marriage to an engineer the British government commissioned her to return to America as inspector of aircraft.

Soon after Maristan Chapman returned from England for her mountain sojourn, which ended in Sewanee. Here her home 'Neverland' is surrounded by oaks, hickories, mountain laurel, rhododendron and acres of underbrush. The house itself is a 'gone-down shack" with the guttering hanging askew and the paint, if there ever was any, long since disappeared under the hot, beating rays of the sun.

Down in one corner of the back yard, behind the old fashioned lilac bushes and holly hocks, rests the "Nomad."

In this tmountain atmosphere Maristan Chapman hoes the corn, sweeps the house and sometimes clad in overalls, climbs the ladder with hammer and nails to stop a bothersome leak in the roof. At 5 o'clock in the evening she is off in her flivver over a half mile stretch of almost impassable roadway to the Sewanee post office. Carrying on her household duties by day, she does her writing at night and most of it after 11 o'clock. Thus she has found contentment and happiness in the "swift intangible romance of fields at home."

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

Paradoxically enough the greatest happiness of children cannot be attained by giving them everything they want.

Like adults, they soon lose that fine sense of appreciation that lies under all real enjoyment, and when we lose appreciation we lose real happiness. However, I do not like to see children disappointed and I think most mothers are alike. They will do almost anything in their power to keep their promise to a child rather than have him bear disappointment.

In this we are right, too, for a promise to a child should be kept if it is humanly possible.

But, speaking of promises, they never should be given without the idea of keeping them. The thing to do is not to get into the promise-making habit. No promise-making, no promise-breaking! If a promise is made and there is a doubt that it can be kept, the child should be told so. "We'll go to Grandma's if it doesn't rain." "I think Daddy may bring you the boat, if he has time to stop at the store." "I'll see about allowing you to go to Billy's to play. Perhaps you can if Billy's mother has no company."

That much for promises. They should be used sparingly and kept when made.

But how about the other times when a child must meet reverses and disappointments the same as his elders, and which he must do continually through life.

It is well for him to become accustomed to disappointment—not only because it is a toughener, but because it will in the long run increase his sense of appreciation.

A certain mother was in the habit of taking small presents home to her boy and girl every time she went into the city for a day's shopping. A toy apiece, a box of candy, books, paints, any little extra thing classified as a gift.

It was all very nice. But she realized it wasn't a good habit for them to get into—the inevitable expectation and the inevitable fulfillment. So one day she brought nothing.

There was a storm, of course.

After that she purposely omitted the gift every time or two she went to town. And the children were twice as happy on the lucky days.

It is only a little lesson I have put down here, but it illustrates. It is harmful to cloy children's appetites for new things and new experiences by handing them everything they want. A spoiled child is seldom happy. The kindest thing a parent can do is to teach him to bear disappointment well.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THEN Scouty gave one child a ride, a lot of other youngsters eyed the happy little pony and they all ran right up near. When Scouty looked at them, he smiled, and then he said, "Now every child can have a turn at riding on this pony. Have no fear!"

"Oh, goody, goody! This is great," exclaimed the bunch. "We just can't wait. We'll promise you that we'll behave, and all act very nice." "That's fair enough," kind Scouty said. And then he promptly went ahead and gave them all a ride. In fact he let them all ride twice.

At last the youngsters all went home, and Scouty thought, "I guess I'll roam back to the tent of animals. The bunch all will be there." He shortly found the Tinymites, and they gazed on some funy sites. A pair of funy kangaroos were hopping in the air.

"This one's as clever as a fox," the trainer said, "and he can box. He's brave as can be." And then he shouted, 'Hey, come up near. Hold up your boxing paws so all the Tinymites can see."

Then Clowny cried, 'Oh, I'll box him. You see I'm right in boxing trim. Give me some gloves, and put some on the kangaroo as well. We'll shortly stage a dandy bout." And soon the gloves were brought right out. The other Tinies gathered 'round and said, "This will be swell."

As soon as everything was set, the trainer shouted, "Come, let's get out of the way, you Tinymites." Then came a ringing sound. It was the bell to start the fight. The kangaroo, with all his might, punched Clowny squarely on the chin and knocked him to the ground.

To whiten and purify a sponge, soak it in milk and rinse thoroughly in warm water to which a little carbolic acid has been added.

BORAX FOR BAKING DISHES

Soak baking dishes that are stained from constant use in warm water and borax. Unless too deeply burned they can be scoured clean.

SEALING BOTTLES

WOMAN ASKS $10,000 FOR ATTACK BY GOOSE

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—One of the oddest suits in the history of the District of Columbia Supreme court was filed by Mrs. Amelia Facteau against John R. Ragland in which Mrs. Facteau alleges that she was attacked by a goose of "a mischievous vicious, excitable, and violent disposition and propensity," owned by Ragland.

Mrs. Facteau alleged in her complaint that she had been damaged to the extent of $10,000 when the goose attacked her while she was quietly returning from church on a recent Sunday morning. As the result of the attack, she said, she had been thrown to the ground, had cut her chin, and fractured her wrist.

MEAD PROMISES FARMER AID IF HE IS ELECTED

Beloit—The problems of the farmer in the distribution of his products was discussed by George W. Mead, mayor of Wisconsin Rapids and a candidate for United States senator, here Tuesday night.

"I think the entire state — the farmer and all others, realize that Wisconsin is the greatest dairy state of the union," he said. "This state makes 70 per cent of the cheese and the value of the butter each year is more than all the gold and sliver mined in the United States and Alaska combined. Beloit and its surroundings are a gold mine—gold in dairy products, but, unlike a gold mine, the supply of dairy products is inexhaustible.

"In the matter of transportation of dairy porducts Wisconsin is not so fortunate. If the St. Lawrence were opened to transportation through the great lakes they could be shipped for 10 per cent of what it now costs by railroad. A large amount of dairy products from abroad can get into New York cheaper than the products of this state. Foreign goods should pay a higher duty.

"If elected to serve my state in congress, I can offer constructive and co-operative assistance to the cause of deep waterways. 'Standing as an insurgeant state and opposing instead of co-operating, Wisconsin is not likely to get credit for taking part in getting the St. Lawrence open for our convenience and for that of other states."

COMMISSIONER HEARS PLEA FOR ELECTRIC SERVICE FROM CITY

Town of Lawrence Residents Prefer Kaukauna to Green Bay Power

Kaukauna—Hearing on the petition of the people of the town of Lawrence of Brown-co for electrical service from municipal plant of the city of Kaukauna was held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the council chambers. A. R. McDonald of the Wisconsin Railroad commission conducted the hearing.

The town of Lawrence in Brown-co was represented by a committee composed of F. M. Woodward, chairman, J. W. McAbee, Edgar Kussow, Mrs. John Biese, Mrs. Henry Vander Heiden, Harry Wood, A. Stutzka, Charles Davis, Joan Sullivan and Henry Spitz, all farmers from that county.

The reason for wanting local service, they said, was because the rate was low. It was brought out at the hearing that the Wisconsin Public Service company of Green Bay had a permit to supply electric service to that vicinity and their representative, C. R. Phenicie, stated that the company was entitled to serve the town on account of the permit. He said when one company had a permit to a county no other company had a right to come into that county to give electrical service.

Commissioner McDonald stated that although it was the rule, the commission could give such permission.

B. Vandervelte, an attorney of Milwaukee, also represented the Green Bay company, and J. O. Posson represented the local city's electrical department.

The petition for service from the city of Kaukauna was drawn and signed by J. W. McAbee and 28 other town of Lawrence residents. F. M. Woodward, chairman of the committee stated that the rate given by the Green Bay company was too high compared with that offered by Kaukauna. He said the rate for service from the Wisconsin Public Service company was $11 per month for 50 kilowat hours, besides paying for the hook up. He pointed that the Kaukauna line ran to within a mile of the town and Kaukauna rates would be but $4.50 per month.

C. R. Phenicie of the Green Bay company explained that their system for giving electrical service to farmers is to set the rate for the first three years so the tarrif will return the amount of investment. After the three years the rate is the same as that in the city. The amount of the investment is divided between the number of farmers served on the line, he said, and then the rate for three years is set on that basis.

J. O. Posson, head of the city electrical department, pointed out that the rate for $4.50 per month for 50 kilowatt hours was passed on an average of 3½ customers per mile for local services.

The decision rests in the hands of the Wisconsin Railroad commission, and an answer to the petition will be given in the near future.

Tourists Praise Camp On River At Kaukauna

Kaukauna—The Kaukauna Tourist camp is the best in the state," said George Buskirk of Ohio who is camping at the park for the second time this summer. He said that it had everything a real camper could want. He praised the fine drinking water, and the scenery.

"The camp is close to the highway, close to town, and yet is secluded enough to let one get close to nature," he said. Mr. Buskirk has been camping in four of five states in this part of the country and said that this camp beat them all barring none, even pay camps. One of the best features about it is the grass. "Most parks," he said, "had only gravel or bare ground."

He stated that he talked to many tourists who praised other camps until they stayed a few days at the local one and then they decided to come here again. Mr. Buskirk has been camping here for the past few days with his wife and he said he could live in the place all summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wiese of Davenport, Iowa, who camp out every summer, said that it was the best camp they stopped at in all their travels. They had been to other camps in the Fox river valley but said that the Kaukauna park was better than any. Mr. Wiese said he had never been in this part of the state before, but he will come again to the local camp. He said that the camp is far enough off of the highway and campers are not bothered by the noise of passing cars. Another good thing about the place is that there are not flies or bugs to bother, he said.

Pay camps are all right, Mrs. Wiese said, but if one is camping out what is the use of using a kitchen to cook things and besides you always have to wait in turn to use them.

The trees affored a wealth of shade and the view of the river winding down to the city make this camp a "tourist's paradise" the campers said.

PROGRESSIVE GIVES TALK IN KAUKAUNA

Miss Anita Koenen Urges Women to Vote for La Follette Candidates

Kaukauna—"Although the Progressives cannot entertain lavishly to induce people to vote for them, as does Kohler, they can offer some vital issues pertaining to the government of Wisconsin," Miss Anita Koenen, a La Follette Progressive leader pointed out in a speech made before a group of about 50 people at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the south side Forester hall.

Never before has there been such an urgent call for women's vote as this year and women must answer the call, she said. Many writers have been discouraging the women by saying that they have done nothing in politics, but they have been without the right to vote until eight years ago she stated. The men have had control of government for centuries and there is still corruption in it, so how can they expect the women to accomplish wonders in a short period of eight years, she said.

She praised the electrical plant of Kaukauna, and said if all cities in the state would have municipal power, industries would be attracted to the state. She said that the average rate for power in the United States was three times as high as that in Canand for no other reason than that holding companies were charging high rates for a large return on their investment. She said that neither Kohler nor Zimmerman mentioned power interests in their campaign, and that it was one of the vital issues.

Miss Koenen was introduced by Mrs. J. Regenfuss, who was chairman of the meeting. Anton Miller, candidate for senate, also gave a short address in which he urged the voters to put all progressives into office so there could be harmony and cooperation in the state government.

MADISON GETS LOWER RATES ON ELECTRICITY

Madison— (AP)—Madison residents from September on will pay about 15 per cent less for its electricity and more than 4 per cent less for gas in accordance with a ruling of the state railroad commisson on rates of the Madison Gas and Electric company.

The ruling is expected to benefit small users of current and gas, because, in the case of electricity, under the revised rating, electrical appliances will not be counted as part of the house-holders' installation, making it possible for the small consumer to get within the lower priced steps of the schedule.

The ruling is said to represent an approximate saving of $3,500 a year to the city of Madison for street lights and the University of Wisconsin will pay about $8,000 less a-year for its electricity.

The commission held that earnings of the gas section of the company do not justify such a large cut in prices as those in the electrical service department. Increased suburban service was also ordered from the company.

Many of the members will take the occasion to make brief vacation trips in upper Wisconsin.

STAGE And SCREEN

The Winninger Players scored another hit with the audience at the Fischer's Theatre last night, in their second offering of the week's engagement, "Hell's Bells." The audience fairly shook the theatre with their continuous applause and laughter. Adolph Winninger as "Jap Stillson." John D. Winninger as "D. O. O'Donnell" and Minet Winninger as "Mrs. Buck," were the outstanding characters in the show, supported by the balance of the company, all of them portraying their individual parts to perfection.

Tonight the Winninger Players will present "My Woman," the dramatic sensation of the decade. This play was one of the few plays to enjoy an extended run in New York last season, the story is exceptionally well written with a plot that holds the audience until the final curtain.

Mr. Marloe and Miss Fair will be seen in entirely different roles in "My Woman" than any other play the Winninger's will present throughout the week. They will have an opportunity to show their ability in playing parts heavier than the usual comedy roles call for. "My Woman" is one of the best plays Mr. Winninger has in his repertoire this season and gives the balance of the company fine parts, but different than anything else that they will present during this engagement.

DRAMATIC LOVE SCENES IN "OUT OF THE RUINS"

Love scenes that are among the most affecting, dramatic and convincing ever portrayed are to be found in "Out of the Ruins," the Richard Barthelmess First National picture at the Elite Theatre for the last times today.

The star, with lovely Marian Nixon playing opposite, both in French characterizations, evidence the perfervid quality of Gallic love. Yet there is a wistful sweetness about it that brings tears to the eyes, because of the extreme character of the problem which confronts the pair in their relations.

John Francis Dillon, director, gave his very best to this dramatic story which culminates after the war in Arras and Paris.

"FORBIDDEN HOURS"

Ramon Novarro plays a role entirely new to him in "Forbidden Hours" Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular story of court intrigue and loves, which is showing at the Elite Theatre tomorrow and Friday. It is a vivid insight into modern conditions in Europe, in which a charming love story is worked out. Renee Adoree is the heroine, and Roy D'Arcy, Edward Connelly, Alberta Vaughn, Shirley O'Hara, Dorothy Cumming and others of note are in the cast. Harry Beaumont directed the new play from an original story by A. P. Younger.

WORK ON GYMNASIUM DELAYED BY RAIN

Hope to Have New College Building Ready by Fall, 1929

Work on the new Lawrence gymnasium has been slightly delayed because of the heavy rains of the past week, but by Thursday it is expected that the pouring of concrete can be resumed, according to R. K. Ashton, superintendent of construction. All excavation has been completed, and despite the delay because of inclement weather the work is going along as scheduled.

It is expected that the three-story stone building, which will cost in the neighborhood of $350,000, will be completed before the opening of school in the fall of 1929. The new gymnasium will include swimming pools, cinder track, ground jumping pit, three basketball courts, and other modern athletic equipment.

SLEEPING SICKNESS IS NERVOUS DISORDER

Madison — (AP) — African sleeping sickness is caused by germs or tiny organisms and the sleeping sickness prominent in America is a nervous disorder, and a scientist traveling in Africa does not demand that his secretary be an accomplished musician.

These facts are made public by Dr. C. W. Muehlenberger, University of Wisconsin, who is taking care of the "fan" mail of Dr. W. K. Stratman-Thomas, young scientist now in Africa.

Shortly after the announcement was made that Dr. Stratman-Thomas would go to Africa to study sleeping sickness and its causes, the letters began to arrive. Many of them confused the American form of the disease with that he is studying, and asked diagnoses by mail. They often cited symptoms to the scientist in the hope that he might tell them what to do for anticipated sleeping sickness or symptoms they believed to approach that disease.

After answering a few of these, Dr. Muehlenberger, pharmacologist and toxicologist on the University staff, found more including applications of those who wished to accompany Dr. Stratman-Thomas on the expedition into the wilds of Africa. Several wanted to be his secretary and on application gave as qualifications a thorough training in music.

Dr. Stratman-Thomas has neither grand piano nor zither with him, his co-worker said.

CHINESE TO REPLACE COLLEGE DORMITORY

Foochow, China —(AP)— Out of the ruins of the $100,000 dormitory of Fukien Christian University, destroyed last May in a blaze believed to have been incendiary, is to rise a group of four dormitories, the first of which is to be built this fall at a cost of $30,000.

The destroyed building, a part of one of the best known mission schools in China, was built entirely with funds from America, part of which was given by John D. Rockefeller, jr. The funds for the new buildings are to be raised entirely from Chinese sources. The Chinese are themselves responsible for the loss of the original building.

AIR TRANSPORTATION IS SAFE MEANS OF TRAVEL HAUGEN SAYS

Says Public Gets Wrong Impression of Safety Through Newspapers

"Air transportation is the safest means of travel in existence today," contended Carl Haugen, president of the North American Airways company, in his talk to members of Rotary club at the Hotel Northern Tuesday noon.

"Because the public's knowledge of aviation is gained chiefly through the casualty reports in the newspapers, it is natural for people to be afraid of it," he said. "However, if they would study government reports they would learn that accidents in the licensed aviation field are less frequent than either railway or automobile mishaps. In 1927 there was only one passenger killed in a licensed airplane, and the aggregate number of miles travelled by licensed planes was two and one-half million."

Further defending air transportation, Mr. Haugen explained that there is no traffic problem, no curves, no crossings or posts; no dizziness, for when a respectable height has been reached the world seems flat; and no sickness unless the air is particularly rough. Furthermore, insurance companies now sanction air travel in a licensed ship, with a licensed pilot, over an established route. However, Mr. Haugen advised that no one enter a plane without first insisting upon seeing the license plate of the machine and the pilot's license.

The speaker, in telling of the progress of air transportation since before the war, predicted that in ten years people living in Appleton would be working in Chicago, commuting by airplane every day. "Air transportation will speed up faster than automobiles did," said Mr. Haugen. "In the last ten years airtransportation has advanced in every respect more than automobiles did in 20 years. Before the war there were 52 planes in America, only two of which were in working condition. Immediately after the war there were 8,000 modern planes, 3,000 trained pilots, and six airports. Since then billions have been spent for airports, and there are now around 3,000 of them, and 64 manufacturers of planes. A year ago there were 15 planes in Wisconsin; today there are 11 in Appleton alone."

"Appleton should be the hub of air activity in eastern Wisconsin," explained Mr. Haugen. He outlined the three proposed airmail lines through Wisconsin—one from Chicago up the Fox River valley; a second from Milwaukee through the Lake Shore cities, across to Appleton and up to Ashland; and a third starting from Appleton and going north to Duluth.

The speaker, in conclusion, told of the 30-day tour of 25 planes from the Ford airport at Detroit, which arrived and left 62 different cities in the United States, over a span of 7,000 miles, absolutely on schedule. The tour was accomplished with no accidents, and with 24 of the 25 planes finishing the trip.

A watch was presented at the meeting to Earl Miller, past secretary of Rotary, in appreciation of his great services to the club. Mr. Miller served as secretary for five years.

USES AIRPLANE TO GET TO IMPORTANT MEETING

An airplane flight made by Percy Brandt of the Smith and Brandt, architects, from Manitowoc to Appleton Monday afternoon, saved three Milwaukee business men a days time and helped complete an important business conference at the Irving Zuelke Music company store on S. Oneida-st.

Three Milwaukee business men were in conference with Irving Zuelke, Monday afternoon, when it suddenly occurred to them that the man they needed the most was missing. Percy Brandt was in Manitowoc and his services were needed in an hours time. Mr. Zuelke immediately phoned Mr. Brandt, and Brandt informed him that he would be at Appleton in an hour. G. L. Smith, met Brandt at the George Whiting Airport and ushered him into the conference just an hour after the phone call was put in.

CHURCHES GET BLAME

Chicago — That the crime situation in this city is partly due to the church' failure to get out into rural sections and "religionize" rural population, is the belief of Rev. H. W. Foreman, of the Episcopal Church. "How can honest, law-abiding citizens be expected in the cities," he says, "when their population are recruited largely from this religious no man's land — the rural districts?"

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

Continuing the series started yesterday of Auction Bridge deals in which the bidding is stated, and one or two questions are asked concerning the play; today's deal is:

North: ♠Q-9-6 ♥8-6 ♦A-Q-J-9-8 ♣9-6-5

West: ♠5 ♥A-K-J-7-3-2 ♦10-6-4 ♣A-J-4

East: ♠4-3-2 ♥10 ♦7-5-3-2 ♣Q-10-8-3-2

South (Dealer): ♠A-K-J-10-8-7 ♥Q-9-5-4 ♦K ♣K-7

THE BIDDING

South	West	North	East
1 Spade	2 Hearts	2 Spades	Pass
Pass	3 Hearts	Pass	Pass
3 Spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

South becomes the Declarer; contract three Spades.

THE QUESTIONS

1. What should West lead to trick 1?
2. What four cards should be played to trick 2?
3. What card should be led to trick 3?

ANSWER BLANK

(Readers are urged to fill this blank before looking at the answers.)

1. To trick 1. West should lead ——.
2. To trick 2, the following four cards should be played: ——, ——, ——, ——.
3. To trick 3, the lead should be ——.

THE ANSWERS

1. To trick 1. West should lead the King of Hearts. Ace-King-Jack is an attractive suit for an initial lead.

2. The play to trick 2 should be: West, Ace of Hearts; North, Eight of Hearts; East, Deuce of Spades; South, Five of Hearts. East trumps his partner's Ace so as to lead Clubs up to Dummy. East can see that no more Heart tricks can be won as any ruff by Dummy will be too high for East to over-ruff. Dummy has the Diamond suit thoroughly in hand, so the only chance for tricks is in the Club suit; obviously it should be led by East, not by West. Should East fail to trump this trick, game could not be saved.

3. To trick 3, East should lead the Ten of Clubs. It is important to lead a Club higher than any in Dummy, and leading the Ten will leave East with Queen-Eight over Dummy's Nine. The Ten is a better lead than the Queen because, if Closed Hand have King-Jack, he might guess wrong with the Ten led, he would cover the Queen.

Vocal Solo by Miss Dorothy Ornstein and Xylophone Solo by C. Meltz Are Popular

It is estimated that about 700 people attended the concert of the 120th Field Artillery band, under the direction of E. F. Mumm, at Erb park, Tuesday evening. A vocal solo, "Happy Go Lucky Love" by Miss Dorothy Ornstein, popular concert singer, met with the applause of the audience. A xylophone solo by Clarence Meltz "Sing Song Sycamore Tree" also met with the approval of the crowd.

"Atlantis, The Lost Continent," a suite in four parts composed by V. F. Safranek, was the feature selection of the band. The concert was opened with the famous overture, "Pique Dame" by F. V. Suppe, followed by the popular selection "Ramona," by Dixon and Woods. A characteristic number "The Old Frog Pond" by H. Alford, and the poeme symphonique "Danse Macabre" by Saint-Saens, were also well received by the audience. Other selections played were "The Prince of Pilsen" by Luders, and "The Star Spangled Banner."

WANT AIRBRAKES ON LUMBER COMPANY TRAIN

The demand of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen that the Yawkey-Bissell Lumber Co. of Whitelake equip its logging trains with airbrakes has caused a hearing before the Wisconsin Railroad commission here next Tuesday. The commission heard the same complaint last winter but adjourned the hearing until next month.

The Yawkey-Bissell company, it is said, operates a spur track out of Hollister into the woods, using its own equipment on this spur track. At Hollister the lumber company's equipment is switched on the Soo line tracks for transportation to the company's mill at Whitelake, the Soo line furnishing a pilot while the equipment is on the Soo line tracks. The trainmen insist that the lumber company should be compelled to equip its trains with airbrakes while it is operated on the Soo line tracks and carried their complaint to the railroad commission.

Nine Sticks or One?
"Consider the old story of the father and his nine sons."

This fable carries an argument for diversification—the ... lies in the ... of a single investment ... strength is always more vulnerable to changing trends or conditions than a well diversified group of holdings. Diversity may be effected in the following ways.

1. By limiting the amount of holdings in the securities of any particular enterprise or organization.

2. By dividing investments between various types of bonds—government, municipal, industrial or public utilities.

3. By obtaining issues with earnings derived from different geographical locations.

4. By diversifying the maturities. Short term and long term bonds should be included in a properly diversified list. In this way the problem of reinvestment at any one time is less acute and the investor is not likely to find himself with a large amount of unproductive funds in a low money market.

The investor who puts these four means of diversification into practice with the counsel of a competent investment banker practically multiplies by four the chances for the safety of his principal and prompt payment of income.

CARDINALS AND LEGION TO BATTLE FOR SOFTBALL CROWN

Playground Champions Defeat Railroad Team And Enter Final Round

Gresenz Pitches Good Ball but Mates Let Cards Run Wild on Bases

Ball Gresenz arrived at the First ward school grounds on time Tuesday evening but because some of his mates were a bit erratic in tossing the ball around the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company softball team saw its hopes for a city softball championship go glimmering by a 6 to 3 score. The Cardinals of the interplayground league were the winners.

Gresenz easily had the best of a pitching argument with Crane of the Cards but the errors of commission on the part of nearly all his backers and also on the part of Bill himself once, cost him the game He allowed only four hits and walked three, ch of the passes resulting in counters Crane of the Cards allowed five hits and issued three free tickets

The battle of a century will be fought Wednesday night on the Jones park grounds with the Cards tackling the Legion for the championship Each team has won two games in the series for the title The game will be called about 5:45.

The Railroad team got off to a great start in the first inning Tuesday evening when a double, single, fielder's choice and another single resulted in two runs. Wege, first up, uncorked the two play wallop, and was followed by Chappell with a single A series of stolen bases with the ball flying all over the place made the game take o the aspect of a rout for a few minutes The Cards, however, settled down and finally retired the side.

Ability of the Cards to prance around the bases at random probably cost the Railroad nine the game The first example of this weakness came in the initial inning when R Crane of the Cardinals walked and pranced all the way to third at his leisure He scored a few seconds later when Reetz dropped the ball on a play at home plate.

The Railroads scored another run in the fourth inning when Johnston hit the ball a mile and drew up at second base. He went to third on a fielder's choice and scored when Crane threw the ball over the backstop. The Cards figured they were due for a run in their half the fourth inning and Feldhan counted after he singled and waltzing around to third base where he was in position to score on an error of a ground ball hit by Stoffel. The Railroaders still lead the procession, however, 3 and 2.

A disastrous sixth inning followed in which the Cardinals scored three runs in a lone hit, a walk and some terrible baseball on the part of the Northwestern team. D Strutz, first up walked and romped around to third. Johnny Bauer then took his five feet four to the plate and was safe on a fielder's choice that enabled his battery mate to score Johnny scored a moment later on a drive down the third base line which C. Reetz thought foul and then threw wild to first Engle, Card third baseman, who had hit the ball came around to third and scored when Bill Gresenz dropped an easy hoper in his desire to cut off the run at the play.

Another run was added to the Cardinal total in the seventh inning just for good measure. Crane counted the second time of the evening after walking and pilfering two bases He scored on a fielder's choice of Reffke's grounder. Feldhan reached third in the eighth inning but failed to score.

The game ended with a double play which draws special mention because it made victims of two of the Railroader's fastest men. Walhe Gresenz flied out to start the final inning and Shorty Carlsten raised their hopes with a single to left Then came Swede Johnston and he was destined to be the goat, for he hit to Ellis at second who doubled Christen off the bag and then tossed to Feavel at first to get the Northwestern's midget shortstop

WRIGLEY MARATHON STARTS WEDNESDAY

Grease Plays Important Part as Contestants Prepare for Grind

Toronto, —(AP)— Grease in large quantities, played the leading part in preparations Wednesday morning by 56 women swimmers for the 10 miles Wrigley marathon race for the title of world's champion long distance swimmers and a prize of $10,000.

Grease seemed to be everywhere along the water front of the Canadian national exhibition as the fair-mine stars were smeared with their special preparations each guaranteed to keep the cold from their systems during the long hours in the cold waters of Lake Ontario It was on the grass on the dressing tents near the starting line on trainers and on officials Its colors ranged from a soiled white to black but all of it was sticky.

Rules of the swim required the wearing of bathing suits at the start at 10 o'clock but many of the women said they would shed their suits before they swam many yards

The winner of the race will receive $10,000 and the next four will split $5,000 The prize winners will be allowed to enter the men's 15 mile race over the same course a week from Wednesday.

The contestants will compete the two and one half mile course four times.

TRY YELLOW BASEBALL AS AN EXPERIMENT AT MILWAUKEE TUESDAY

Milwaukee—(AP)—What is believed to be the first time a yellow baseball has ever been used in professional play was experimented with here Tuesday in the second game of a doubleheader between Milwaukee and Louisville. President T. J. Hickey of the American association was here to see the result.

The new balls are said to have greater visibility than white ones, particularly with a bleacher background of white shirts They are not easily discolored and therefore should give longer service.

Further experiments will be made and if successful the ball will be officially adopted for 1929 It is manufactured by Wilson and company, Chicago, makers of the present official American association ball.

VALLEY LEAGUE GOSSIP

Possession of the 1928 pennant in the Valley league is still in doubt despite the fact that the curtain is dropped on Labor Day. Kim-Little Chute is still a game in the lead. The fast going Kaws, the second placers, meet Appleton Sunday and Fondy on Monday. Both games are played at home.

The Papermakers journey to Green Bay on the Sabbath day while the Labor Day argument will be played at Little Chute against Nee-Menasha. In case, Lamers' tribe should happen to get bumped by the Bays and the Kaws score a pair of victories, the clubs would be even up for the top of the ladder.

The biggest crowd of the season saw the Kaws and Papermakers mix and joy was supreme with the Kaukauna crowd as Smith's outfit proceeded to rap the offerings of Pocan all over the lot. The 13 to 5 walloping was the worst upset Kim-Little Chute has suffered in the past two diamond seasons.

Green Bay came pretty close to being handed a rude surprise. The lowly Nee-Menasha Pails pranced around like pennant chasers and Clusman's team had to put forth their best to keep the bacon at home, 4 to 3 It was a scrappy ball game and the umpires were in hot water all afternoon

President Baetz of the Valley league, who is now playing in the outer gardens for Nee-Menasha, broke the distance record at the Bay park with his circuit swat. There is a building back of the left field wall and Baetz's drive landed on the roof It cleared the barrier by some thirty feet.

Amidee, the Kaukauna shortstop, got a little extra pay for the Kim-Little Chute game One of the Outagamie county political candidates offered a ten spot to the player who made the longest hit and Amidee cinched the double V by peeling off a pair of triples, one of which was nearly a homer.

Casey Jansen, the veteran Valley league umpire, scampered around the field at Little Chute filling a new role Casey took a day off from umpiring and, as mayor of Little Chute, took a hand in making the visitors feel at home just as long as they didn't creep on fair field in the gardens.

Eddie Kotal left a box of cigars to be handed out to the Kaws and Papermakers Sunday. Last Saturday, the Kim-Little Chute shortstop was married to a Kenosha girl and he was away on his honeymoon This is the first game Kotal was out of this season and the league leaders missed him

Senecal who has been playing ball at Fond du Lac for a number of seasons, turned in a good game at third base against Appleton. Aside from fielding in brilliant form he had a field day with the stick getting three hits one of which was a double and this spelled runs for the Cardinal crew.

Herzog the Pails' first sacker has been getting some good results from the Manitowoc players whom he has brought over to plug the gaps in the Nee-Menasha line up These players like Valley league ball and next year they are going to try and place a Manitowoc team in the Valley league circuit

Ballots for the selection of the all-Valley league teams were sent out to the managers and umpires on Tuesday with the request that they be filled in and returned immediately The star selections will be published in the papers around the circuit in their editions of Saturday Sept 8

JONES SHATTERS COURSE RECORDS AT CHICAGO

Chicago—(AP)—Chicago golf courses may have a par but Bobby Jones, the golfing lawyer from Atlanta, doesn't care Tuesday Bobby turned in his fourth score under 70 since arriving in Chicago Saturday and is doing so set a new course record for the Floosmoor links

Golfers and a gallery went to Flossmoor Tuesday in memory of Warren K Wood, former western amateur champion They saw Bobby Jones go round in 37-30—67, not only shattering the course record but coming one stroke of equalling the world's record for nine holes

Heading the American Walker cup team, which appeared in its entirety to participate in the Wood memorial tournament, Jones went out in a foursome that included T. Phillip Perkins, the British champion, William Tweddell, captain of the Britons, and Chick Evans, former national amateur and open champion. The remainder of the foursome did not fare so badly but their golf was mediocre besides that of Jones.

OH, BABY! IT'S HERE ALREADY!

Just gaze, dear reader, on this—the first football practice of the year! The squad you see before you is that of the plebe class at the United States Naval Academy and they're going through their training rather early, but with lots of pep This was taken on the first day of practice at the academy and shows the new arrivals, who hope some day to sail the high seas for Uncle Sam, taking a preliminary turn under the eyes of watchful coaches.

WEST HIGH GRIDDERS PRACTICE ON SEPT. 4

Loss of Most of Old Team Accounts for Coach White's Early Start

Green Bay—As time for opening of the schools draws near and with it the football season, Coach "Murph" White at West high faces the tough task of building up a championship eleven with but a few regulars of his last year championship squad returning to their classes.

Coach White lost practically his entire team by graduation this summer and with it some of the greatest football men who ever wore a West jersey, and now must build up a new squad from the few regulars and second string men of last year and what newcomers the fall will bring.

The first practice season for West team candidates has been called for Tuesday, Sept. 4. This will be a week before the school opens but Coach White plans on getting his boys in action at that time so they will be in shape for the first game scheduled with the alumni on Sept. 22.

Ed Olsen, Shark and Lahaye are three men who played at end positions in some of the games last year who are expected to turn out when the first session is called. Diedrickson, a tackle, who performed regularly at that position last year, Don Maxwell, another tackle, Harold Stramm, a guard and Norbert Shink, a center, are other prospects for regular berths on the line this year. Dick Zohl, a utility lineman last year, also is expected to make the grade this season

In the backfield, Coach White expects to have several promising candidates that includes Robert and Joe Maloney, Reid Jeffers, McGann, Kahlman and De Muth All of these men were used as second string backfielders last year and should come through good this season.

West will play seven conference games this season and meet East in the annual Thanksgiving day game Nov. 29. On Sept. 29 and Oct. 6 double header games will be played on agreement with East

Following is the schedule of games this season.

SANGOR LOSES DECISION TO SANTIAGO ZORILLA

Los Angeles—(AP)—Santiago Zorilla, San Blas, Indian featherweight, won the judges' decision over Joey Sangor of Milwaukee in a ten round fight here Tuesday night

Despite the decision, ringsiders gave the Indian only one round, the third and an even break in the sixth On several occasions, however, Sangor was backed to the ropes.

Sangor battered Zorilla almost at will during the first two rounds, and backed the Indian on his heels in the fourth fifth, seventh and eighth.

HERE'S SUGGESTION FOR A BUTTE DES MORTS CADDY

Fond du Lac—Melvin Hill, caddy champion at the Fond du Lac Town and Country club late Tuesday afternoon established a new national record for continuous golf after having played more than 135 holes He had covered the nine hole course fifteen times at a late hour Tuesday and started on his sixteenth round confident he would establish a new record which would be hard to equal

The national record, which was shattered by young Hill, was 127 holes The youth was maintaining an average of from 48 to 50 for the course.

He changed caddies at the end of each nine holes

BOXING COMMISSION SUSPENDS O'DONNELL

Milwaukee—(AP)—Johnny O'Donnell of St. Paul who took a terrific beating at the hands of Sammy Mandell at Louisville recently, has taken another joit on the chin from the Wisconsin Boxing Commission.

He was suspended indefinitely Tuesday night for failure to explain why he went in the Mandell fight with a bad eye suffered in training here after examination by the commission physician.

New York—Pal Silver outpointed Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, (10).

It's The Ninth Inning But Danny Hasn't Fanned

Milwaukee—(AP)—Every day for the next month, a tattered, dissipated wreck of a man will repeat the same query to all who happen in the Milwaukee house of correction from the "outside," "How'd that Athletics come out today?"

That will be Danny Murphy—Dapper Danny of old, the same who frisked about the keystone sack for Connie Mack in the halcyon days when the Philadelphia Athletics were always "up there fighting"; who wielded a potent war club when a baseball was just a piece of horsehide and not a hyper-resilient spheroid made to order for four base specialists

Danny, who fought shoulder to shoulder with Leach ross, Chief Bender, Lord and other A's who brought a pennant to Philadelphia in 1905, and who went down fighting in a great world's series before the prowess of Christie Mathewson, Danny, who fanned ignominiously in the game of life.

Danny admits freely enough that to date life has beaten him The battery work of that unbeatable team, booze and gambling, was too much for the old boy's cunning The other night, drunk, Danny stole a topcoat for himself against the coming winter, and they put him in jail for 60 days.

But the remarkable part of this little tragedy of life, is that Danny, 58, and about to be sent to the showers, is planning a ninth inning rally.

"They've hit me hard," said the grizzled veteran as he headed for prison Tuesday "I've been a fool. I could sock 'em a mile, and they paid me plenty

"I was worth $50,000 in 1907—and today I couldn't pay a $10 jolt. Sure, 'twas booze and gambling that put the skids under me I ain't drawed a sober breath since 1916, when I said goodby to Connie Mack

"But"—and he squared the shoulders that had packed a wallop at the plate in the old days—"I ain't through yet I'm gonna sober up—then watch me come back."

ED ROUSCH RECOVERING FROM RECENT OPERATION

St Louis—Ed Roush, outfielder for the New York Giants, and Cullen Cain, publicity director for the National league, are recovering at St. Louis hospital here from recent operations Roush was operated on for a torn fascia, the muscle covering the abdomen and will be in shape for play next season. Surgeons removed Cain's left eye.

PREDICT END OF LEAGUE BALL AT LAKE SHORE CITY

Manitowoc Fans Fail to Support Team; Management Losing Money

Manitowoc—The disastrous showing of Manitowoc over the weekend in their games with the Union Oils, together with the poor attendance at both battles at the fair grounds—particularly the Sunday game, when the total gate barely touched the $200 mark, means that Manitowoc has seen the last state league game this season. It may also mean a curtilment of the team payroll by the reduction of the roster.

Rumors Monday that Johnny Decker local short stop has turned in his suit, following some words with Manager Schuetze, at the Sunday game, were denied by the latter However, he declared that the team might be cut down and that two or three of the present players might not be with the squad when the team plays at Milwaukee Sunday.

It is also possible that Manitowoc may withdraw the protest of the much disputed Two Rivers game of July 29, ordered played over by President Hedding It is almost a certainty that the game will never be played

The final game of the season, Sept 9 which might have been transferred here from Madison, will now be played there or not at all With a loss of $500 in the games over the weekend the Manitowoc management does not propose to suffer further financial reverses And if the playing of the game, Sept 9 has no bearing on the final result, it will probably be called off altogether

The season has been a financial failure here and it is reported that those who backed the team here the past year will have nothing further to do with the team in Manitowoc in 1929.

There will be no exhibition games by Manitowoc. When the regular season is over that will be all, the management says

Boston—Dick (Honeybox) Finnegan Boston, defeated Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, (10).

National Leaguers In Battle For Runner-Up Position; Macks Cop Two

Yankees Are Idle and Athletics Make Up Ground They Lost Over Weekend

It's a dog fight for runner-up position in the National league.

A small blanket would suffice to cover the Giants, Cubs, Reds and Pirates who are battling fiercely to catch the St. Louis Cardinals before Bill McKechnie gets his crew too far away.

Six percentage points—or a half game—divide the Giants, present occupants of second place, from the Reds and the Pirates who are tied for fourth position. The Cubs, according to one way of reckoning, are all even with the Giants, having won four more games and lost four more than the clan McGraw, but they rank no higher than third in percentage.

It took some heavy losing and winning by the five contenders Tuesday to bring about this situation.

Behind some canny pitching by Clarence Mitchell, the Cardinals had no trouble registering a 6 to 9 victory over the Cubs. The Cards were baffled by Pat Malone until the sixth when they scored four runs with the aid of some Cub infield errors. Two more were added in the seventh off Percy Jones The Cubs made only seven hits off Mitchell and never threatened. Orsatti got four hits, one a double, to lead the Cardinal assault.

Rogers Hornsby seemed to take great delight in the Braves double defeat of the Giants, 3 to 2 and 7 to 5 He got six hits, three of them doubles, during the day, drove in two runs and scored four himself. Larry Benton and Joe Genewich, both former Boston stars, were the pitching victims

The Pirates crushed the Phils, 9 to 2 and 16 to 7 Carmen Hill gave up uponly four hits in the first game while Joe Dawson received credit for the second when Burleigh Grimes was knocked out of the box in the second inning The Corsairs collected 15 hits in the first game and 21 in the second.

In the American league, the Philadelphia Athletics regained the ground they lost on Monday by taking both ends of a twin bill with the Chicago White Sox. Lefty Grove hung up his twelfth straight victory in the opener, 1 to 0 Bing Miller's single in the eleventh scored Mule Haas with the run that gave the A's the nightcap, 4 to 3. The double victory placed the A's again three games back of the New York Yankees who were idle as far as league play was concerned.

A six run rally in the third gave the Detroit Tigers an 8 to 4 decision over the Cleveland Indians in the opening game of the series

The St. Louis Browns rallied for two runs in the eleventh inning to turn back the Boston Red Sox, 8 to 6.

PACKER HEADQUARTERS AGAIN AT COLUMBUS CLUB

Green Bay—The Columbus Community club will again be the headquarters of the Packer Football team during the coming season, according to announcements made by F. M. Nemeck, manager. Each Packer man will be given a membership entitling him to use of the privileges of the club, and all of the "boys" will make their headquarters there.

JOE DUNDEE IN CHICAGO DEBUT WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Chicago—(AP)—Joe Dundee, world's welterweight boxing champion, will make his Chicago debut Wednesday night against Young Jack Thompson, Pacific coast Negro boxer, over a ten-round route at Comiskey park.

LOUISVILLE TAKES TWO FROM BREWERS

Indianapolis Stages Comeback and Breaks Even With Blues

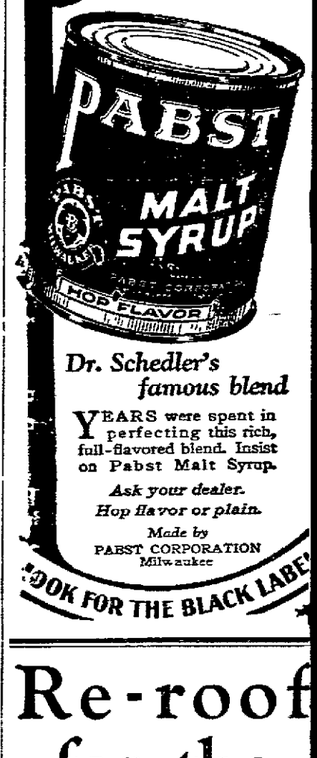

Chicago—(AP)— Dutch" Zwilling and his pennant aspiring Kansas City Blues may lose a game but that does not stop their drive for the top of the American association pennant ladder

The pace setting Indianapolis Indians snapped the Blues' winning streak Tuesday in the opener of a double header but Zwilling's crew bounded right back to win the second game The Minneapolis Millers took a stronger hold on runner-up position by downing the lowly Columbus Senators for the second time in 3 The victory put the Millers only one game out of first place.

The Indians' 5 to 9 victory in the first game broke the Blues double header winning streak, which had extended to four. The second game which Kansas City won 3 to 1, was Jimmy Zinn's twenty-first triumph of the season

Milwaukee was the only team of the five contenders for the pennant to suffer Tuesday and that was because the Louisville Colonels decided to come out of their slump The Colonels came out with a bang, defeating the Brewers twice 9 to 5 and 2 to 1. Ballou was charged with both defeats starting the first and finishing the nightcap.

St. Paul likewise refused to be counted out of the race scoring its second victory of the series with Toledo 5 to 2.

COMMISSION ACTS ON REQUEST FOR HIGH CORN TARIFF

Department of Agriculture Insists There Is Need for Greater Protection

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—The Tariff Commission will soon settle down to the task of preparing its report of findings following public hearings and receipt of briefs on the proposed higher corn tariff and will make recommendations to President Coolidge.

The department of agriculture and the American Farm Bureau federation insist that there is a need for greater protection for corn growers in the middle west and that Argentine maize enters into direct competition with our own. The president has the power to raise or lower duties 50 per cent. The Tariff Commission is confined to recommendations based on any inequality of production costs working to the disadvantage of our farmers.

The Farm Bureau Federation says, using the year 1926, that there was a difference of between 35 and 36 cents a bushel between the Argentine and American production costs for corn.

The Argentines told the commission that Argentine corn didn't enter into competition with ours and pointed out that in no year under the present tariff had the price of corn in Chicago differed greatly from the price in Buenos Aires by the amount of the existing duty.

They produced evidence from grain importers who insisted that Argentine corn couldn't compete with domestic corn more than 200 miles inland because of present duties and high freight rates. It is used almost entirely by eastern farmers for feed, they said, and these farmers would suffer if higher duties caused higher prices.

In their brief, they held that their protest was largely a matter of principle—that the proposed duty boost would further aggravate the unfavorable position under which Argentine imports into this country had been placed.

Less than half of 1 per cent of Argentina's corn exports are sent to this country, but that amount represents 95 per cent of our corn imports. Corn imports from the Argentine dropped from 2,220,000 bushels in 1924 to 793,000 bsuhels in 1926. The Agentines say this would be virtually eliminated if the tariff were increased.

Not publicly by privately, the Argentines complain that most of the American witnesses before the commission were politically minded and shy on statistics to prove the need of an increase. These included Senator Howell of Nebraska and a representative of Iowa's governor.

They were shocked to hear the charge that many shipments of Argentine corn had contained weevils.

They are convinced that the agitation for increase was motivated by political considerations on the part of those seeking to give some semblance of relief, real or imaginary, to the American farmer.

But in the likely event that the commission finds itself sharply divided on the question it is believed that President Coolidge probably will take no action.

CITY IN UNEARTHED AFTER 12 CENTURIES

Archealogists Rapidly Uncover Ancient Roman Metropolis

Leptis Magna, Lybia —(AP)—Out of the sands of Tripolitania, where for 12 centuries it has laid dead and buried a magnificent Roman city of Phoenician origin has arisen.

Two years ago, when archaeologists of many nations came here, there was merely a desert. Today there is a "skeleton city" of temples, monuments, arches, splendid columns and private villas.

The facades of the unearthed shops are enriched with sculptured marbles of rare beauty. A beautiful column stands between every two doors.

Many of the works of architecture which were found crumbled under their covering of sand have been rebuilt with the original stones. The four-faced arch of Septimius Severus, the Roman emperor who was born here and died at York, in England, has been rebuilt with its own blocks and ornaments.

Among the "finds" of the archaelogists, most of whom are Italian, are exquisite sculptured figures of gods warriors, priests and magistrates.

This skeleton city of Leptis Magna once was a flourishing port town with a population of 60,000. When the Romans took it over from the Phoenicians, it became the most important commercial town in the Mediterranean. Here came all the riches of Africa, and were loaded on ships which found a refuge here from the devastating north winds.

When Rome began its long decline, Leptis sank too. Its ruin was hastened by river floods. When the Turks conquered Alexandria in the seventh century, they found Leptis covered by sand and already forgotten. Leptis then became the Pompeii of Africa.

September Is Fine Month For Fishing Claflin Says

BY B. A. CLAFLIN

Fortunate, indeed, is the fisherman who has voluntarily or by reason of necessity, deferred his trip north until September, or even later. The air is cooler and fresher, the garb of the woods has changed from a universal green to one of many colors. Resplendent flowers of the late varieties bloom along the highways, the maples turn to red and the poplars to a golden yellow.

Nor does one have to travel far to revel in these wonderful gifts of a provident Father. A drive through Langlade county will be a replete in interesting sights. The sweet, cool air following a frosty night, will fill the lungs with an elixir that no other stimulant can replace. The crowds of city folks have dwindled: better accommodations at the resorts may be had as a result; the fish have grown new teeth and a correspondingly voracious appetite, their flesh is firmer and its flavor better.

Altogether, the coming two months is the ideal time for a trip of real, unalloyed pleasure, minus the "bugs" and other annoying features of the "silent places" during the hot months. The hours of sunlight are growing shorter it is true, but for this loss the pleasure seekers are well compensated by the cheer of the flaming log, and the nights of sound, refreshing sleep which rejuvenates the tird body of the city dweller by leaps and bounds, and sends him back to the arduous tasks of business a fitter and better man.

To get the most out of a vacation trip at this time of the year, by all means camp by the wayside on your trip to God's country. It 's surprising how warm a small tent it, especially if it be provided with a cloth floor.

Let me suggest a trip for you, one which, if you will take it, you will long remember and be sure to repeat. Above all things, let your objective be Langlade county. Drive up highway 55 or 47 through the Menominee reservation because of the beautiful virgin timber through which you will pass. As you travel you will feast your eyes on heavy pines, huge hardwoods, centuries old, silver birches that lend variety to the setting, and your nostrils will be regaled with the fragrance of the vast carpet of fragrant ferns that abound everywhere. No wand then, through openings in the forest, you will glimpse the silvery stretches and rainbow-tinted waterfalls of the beautiful Wolf river.

When you reach Antigo, drive out Superior street to Kasson's public camping grounds for a night of solid comfort, away from all noise and confusion. This may sound elementary but I am pointing out a trip we recently made in order to save you the trouble of making inquries.

In the morning leave early for any of the wonderful lakes or streams awaiting you in Langlad county. If you want excellent Wall-eyed pike fishing, go to Post lake. These fine fish are biting now and the sport will increase. If you want bass, take highway 26 to Kempster. One mile farther will bring you to a farm a few rods from the highway. Here you will find a lake that will give you some great sport with these fighters. Sawyer lake also, is producing some of the very finest of bass. Pickerel lake and a host of others are equally good for fall fishing.

RIPON MAN LEAVES PROGRESSIVE PARTY

Dr. Bruno Schallern Endorses Walter J. Kohler for Governor

Ripon—Declaring he has abandoned the Progressive party because he believes its leaders "have prostituted the very principles of progressives," Dr. Bruno Schallern Wednesday announced his indorsement of Walter J. Kohler, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

"The leaders of the Progressive party," Dr. Schallern said, "since the death of Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Sr., have assumed a retro-progressive attitude to which I can no longer subscribe. I propose to support Walter J. Kohler for governor of Wisconsin.

"He is by nature a successful builder. He employs hundreds of men who are perfectly satisfied with their positions and pay because he believes in adequate wages as well as the comfort of his employes.

"He has solved the problems of capital and labor as near as it is humanly possible. He is not an untrustworthy professional politician who hopes to get votes by misrepresentation, but a man whose chief aim will be to conduct the affairs of the state on business principles.

"He will induce manufacturing industries to come into this state to give employment to fathers, sons and daughters and build up the state of Wisconsin with its wonderful resources to become one of the foremost states of the union. That will help the farmer, the mechanic, labor of all kind, the merchant and business in general and that means prosperity for the state."

CHINESE LEARN OF AMERICA BY MOVIES

Films Aid in the "Americanization" of Young People in China

Canton —(AP)— The government's recent order prohibiting public dances has resulted in speeding up the "Americanization" of Chinese youth through moving pictures.

The dance halls closed and the picture palaces were obliged to expand their seating capacity immediately. Virtually all the pictures shown here are brought from a faithful Chinese patron of the theaters soon knows as much about American life as though he had lived there.

The titles of the films are in English and but few Chinese can read English, but this difficulty has been disposed of with thoroughness. Each cinema house has an interpreter who explains the titles of story of the film as it is shown on the screen. These interpreters are famed for their ability as story tellers and can present the titles and story of the film to their audience with attractiveness and often times much humor. An efficient motion picture interpreter draws a large salary.

Since the recently imposed government ban on public dancing, Canton's motion picture theaters have been crowded to capacity, although the films have always been popular.

Chinese moviegoers consider they can learn more about American life and customs in an evening with the aid of the motion pictures than a foreigner in China can learn of Chinese life and customs over a long period.

Motion picture magazines also have a fairly large circulation here considering that only a small percentage of the population read English.

Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks are the favorites of the screen with Harold Lloyd close behind.

Many Precautions Insure Appleton's Clean Milk

Although Appleton people have been supplied with milk and cream that is among the purest offered in the state for the past four years few of them realize the elaborate precautions that are being constantly taken to insure that cleanliness.

Finding the milk on the front porch when they awaken in the morning and never experiencing any trouble as the result of drinking it has lulled the people into a sense of indifference regarding the manner in which milk is supplied—and the steps that are taken to certify the cleanliness of the product.

The greater part of the program providing pure milk for Appleton consumers is carried out by T. [illegible] Sanders, deputy health officer under the direction of Dr. H. P. D[illegible], city health officer, and with the cooperation of Appleton milkmen.

The first step in the program provides for a monthly inspection of milk. At this inspection Mr. Sanders determines the amount of sediment in the milk and the butterfat content of both milk and cream.

Stop[illegible] Mr. Sanders picks out two [illegible] milk. One is forced through a strainer under pressure and the [illegible] strainer cup retains any [illegible] that may be in the fluid. But cleanliness of milk is not all that must be watched by the milkmen because under state regulations the [illegible] must contain at least 3 per cent butterfat and 18 per cent cream. PLACE ANOTHER SWITCH ENGINE AT WORK HERE

Another switch engine started operating between the Appleton Junction and Appleton, Tuesday morning, according to W. B. Basing, line agent. It was necessary to add the engine because freight traffic increased by the heavy out going crop shipments, Mr. Basing said. The engine probably will operate until the end of the year.

R. C. A. Radiola 60

A New Conception of Selectivity

The RCA Super-Heterodyne, for five years the acknowledged leader in radio set design, has, in Radiola 60, been made a still finer instrument as a result of the continuous work of the two hundred engineers in the laboratories of RCA, General Electric and Westinghouse. Not by virtue of its eight powerful AC Radiotrons alone, but also because of many new features in design, Radiola 60 outperforms other radio broadcast receivers with sensitivity, selectivity and tone fidelity that is amazing.

Unlike most receivers, Radiola 60 is super-selective without sacrifice of quality. It has the ability to separate broadcasting stations precisely in the most congested areas, without excluding any of the musical frequencies that are so necessary to perfect reception. Only the new RCA Super-Heterodyne is capable of this inclusive selectivity.

Th entire circuit, consisting of two stages of tuned radio frequency amplification, detector, two stages of tuned intermediate frequency amplification, a second power detector, and one stage of power audio frequency amplification, is operated by a single tuning control.

The two stages of tuned radio frequency amplification and two stages of tuned intermediate frequency amplification make Radiola 60 so sensitive that a short indoor antenna will usually be sufficient for distance as well as local reception. Still another eminent feature of Radiola 60, the second power detector, permits the elimination of one stage of audio frequency amplification and thereby avoids the possibility of distortion that is frequently due to successive stages of audio amplification.

Radiola 60 is as beautiful in appearance as it is superb in performance. Its cabinet is a table mode lof distinguished design in two-toned walnut finish upon the panel of which are mounted cast metal escutcheon plates. Although low in price, Radiola 60 shows a degree of perfection in design and construction that marks it as one of the most progressive steps in radio since the beginning of broadcasting.

The R.C.A. Radiola 60 will arrive soon!

Tops

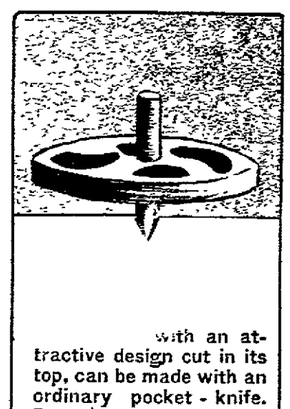

The making of tops is a fascinating pastime for most boys. The top to the left may be made easily with a large round button or disc of wood. A peg is fitted into the button or disc. The peg should be about a quarter-inch in diameter and made to fit snugly. The top shown to the right is made in the same way, a spool being used instead of a button.

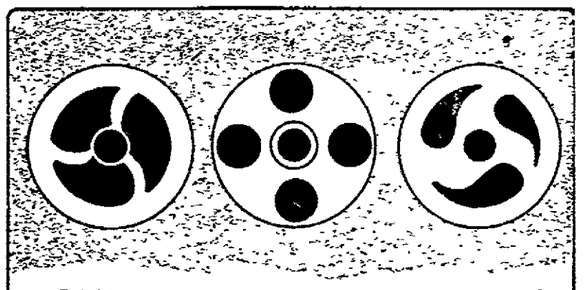

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge. Copyright, 1923-28.

A large spool cut in half makes the top pictured above. The spool can be whittled or shaped to the proper size.

with an attractive design cut in its top, can be made with an ordinary pocket - knife. Draw the pattern, then cut it out.

Bright colored paints will improve the appearance of the tops. The top-maker can plan and cut out a number of discs, which will fit one top. If designs are cut out or painted upon the different discs, and then those discs placed one above another, the result, as the top whirls, will be surprising. Colored paper strips may be used instead of cardboard. (Next: A Model Stage)

DYNAMITES SELF

Pikesville Ky.—(AP)—Apparently despondent over his failure to save enough money after a long privation, to take him back to his home in Hungary, Louis Sanislo, 64, a miner, tied dynamite around his body, rigged up a battery connection and blew his body to bits. A note on an old envelope was found saying, "Goodbye, America. Goodbye all."

EYES RETARD PUPILS

New York—Willie can now have a new alibi when he fails to pass his school examinations. According to W. A. Blocker, chairman of the convention committee for the Guild of Prescription Opticians of America, eyestrain and defective vision is retarding 2,100,000 school children in their studies.

Great Britain Dislikes 8-Inch Gun Cruisers

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington—British Admiralty dislike of the 8-inch gun cruiser, dear to the American naval heart, and prevention of Washington plans for building up the cruiser fleet with [illegible] must have played an important part in connection with the French-British naval limitation deal [illegible] withholding of the details of the deal from publication. It is [illegible] enough that cruiser limitations are involved.

The London-Paris deal may, and [illegible] does, provide a face saving [illegible] for France from the global tonnage impasse at Geneva. She seems ready to trade actual limitation by tonnage of certain types of submarines for acceptance of the principal of global tonnage limitation.

In other words, the project now put forward is that the universal [illegible] limitation treaty toward which the Geneva conferences have been [illegible] striving should allot each [illegible] power its due number of tons of warships without any restrictions as to the type or class of ships to be [illegible] within that total tonnage other than as to size and armament which would identify each class. Simultaneously, however, agreed building programs to run, say, ten years would be worked out which would in fact fix the tonnage for each power in [illegible] class for that period.

U. S. NOT INVOLVED

So far, no difficulties for the United States would be involved, although it all looks like merely beating around the stump the original Washington plan of limiting by tonnage each category of combat ships. But the London-Paris deal goes further and creates new categories not only of submarines, but of surface craft. It clearly foreshadows a new Admiralty move to limit the number of 8-inch gun cruisers and leave construction of 6-inch gunners unrestricted except by the general global tonnage total. And there the shoe begins to pinch for Washington. That's where the three-power conference collapsed with Washington and Tokyo returning a polite "No, thank you," to every different formula designed to reach the same end.

What seems to have happened is that London did a little dickering with Paris to obtain at least a degree of submarine limitation. Big, sea-going subs would be limited, little coast defense U-boats would not. But to offset that concession under which France could arm herself with small subs enough to make things difficult for the British navy in the event of a clash, the British retain an ace in the hole by reserving the right to build small cruisers, destroyers and other small types of anti-submarine craft at will. The only type of cruiser to be limited, apparently, would be the American favorite 8-inch gunners and the London-Paris deal seems to be leading up to a new suggestion that they be placed in a special class of offensive warships.

CRUISERS IMPORTANT

Right there the project steps hard on Uncle Sam's toes. American naval opinion holds the 8-inch gunners to be about the only type of cruiser valuable for American purposes. For one thing, they alone would have fuel capacity sufficient to afford protection, self sustained, along American trade routes in any sea, a factor the London Admiralty probably does not consider vital because of Britain's far-flung net work of fueling bases.

TWENTY AIRPLANES HUNT MISSING MEN

Two Expert Pilots in Lindbergh's Ship Disappear Monday Afternoon

New York — (AP)—Twenty airplanes organized to fly in giant fan formation, and supplemented by other aircraft throughout the state, were enlisted Wednesday in a search for two men missing in a flight from Buffalo to Curtiss field.

M. M. Merrill, manager of Curtiss field, and Edwin M. Ronne, head of the Buffalo Municipal airport, took off from Buffalo at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon in Colonel Lindbergh's Curtiss Falcon. Many hours later no word of their landing had been received.

The flight from Buffalo should have taken only two and one half to three hours. When the airmen did not appear at Curtiss field on schedule little fear was felt as both men were expert pilots and it was supposed they had landed somewhere for the night.

Roger Q. Williams, who is to pilot Cesare Sabelli's Roma on its projected trans-Atlantic flight, and Major John M. Reynolds, operations officer at Mitchel field, were among those to volunteer for the search, and with other vounteers it was estimated almost 100 planes would be in the air scanning the country.

Merrill and Ronne were both army fliers during the war. After army service, Merrill barnstormed for several years through the southwest. He came to New York several years ago and for some time has been in charge of Curtiss field. He has a wife and a year old son. Ronne has been in charge of the Buffalo airport since it was built two years ago.

ELECT EXECUTIVES KOHLER DECLARES

Don't Choose Men Who Are Ever Watching Next Election, Candidate Says

Waukesha—(AP)—Efficiency in government is made possible only by refusing office to men whose eyes are ever on the next election, Walter J. Kohler said in an address Tuesday night.

"If you were selecting the manager for any business in which you were interested," he asked, "would you choose a professional politician skilled in getting votes, or would you choose an executive skilled in getting results?"

The best results cannot be obtained in the state's government, he said, by electing men, "who trim their sails to every political wind, who make appointments on the basis of service to themselves, instead of service to the state, and who use their time and that of the office-holding henchmen to build up a political machine at the expense of the tax payers."

BULLS IN CONTROL OF STOCK MARKET

Pools Active When Alarm Over Call Rate Boost Subsides Temporarily

New York—(AP)—Stock prices made further recovery at the opening of Wednesday's market. International Nickel opened with a block of 2,500 shares at 112 [illegible] new high record, and the first sale of Consolidated Gas was a block of [illegible] shares at [illegible], up 2¾. White Motors opened a point higher.

Early gains ranged from fractions to 4 points and were distributed among a wide variety of motor, food public utility, copper, chemical and amusement shares. The rails were slow in getting started.

Paramount Famous Lasky was bid up 3 points. The rise of 2 points to a new top by Stanley Co. of America was based on unconfirmed reports that Warner Bros. were negotiating for the property. U. S. Steel Common, R. H. Macy, new stock, American Express, National Cash Register, Briggs Manufacturing, American Linseed, Inland Steel and Montgomery Ward also attained new peak prices.

Foreign exchanges opened steady with Sterling Cables unchanged at $4.85[illegible].

The new upward tilt to prices, and the temporary subsidence of recent apprehension over credit conditions was taken full advantage of by numerous pools to "make hay while the sun shines." Stocks of all descriptions pointed upward as the competition to buy became more general. Several shares that have recently burst into prominence went up again in a rapid manner, notably R. H. Macy, which reached 147¾, while the Rights brought 286. About the only fly in the ointment was the further liquidation of Freeport Texas which carried it down to 57½. The renewal rate for call loans was unchanged at 7½ per cent.

The closing was strong. Total sales approximated 3,700,000.
